Britain Threatens To Cancel Exchange Of War Prisoners

Huns Seek Changes In Personnel

By HOMER JENKS

LONDON, Oct. 4.—(BUP)—Great Britain today threatened to disembark 1,500 German prisoners aboard ships at Newhaven if Germany fails by Sunday morning to agree to satisfactory arrangements for exchange of prisoners at a French channel port.

The hitch in arrangements for the exchange was revealed today at the same time British officials said that there was no question of including Rudolf Hess, the No. 3 Nazi who flew to Scotland and was taken prisoner, in exchange.

The ministry of information said that, in view of the hitch caused by a German request for change in the composition of Germans being sent from England, it would wait until Sunday morning for a satisfactory reply from Berlin.

It if is not received, the prisoners already loaded at Newhaven will be disembarked.

NEWHAVEN, Eng., Oct. 4.—(CP)—Mysterious inter-government communications continued to hold up the war's first exchange of British and German prisoners today, and residents at this channel port did not know whether to expect bombs or a temporary olive branch.

A group of 1,500 German wounded, to be exchanged for 1,500 wounded Britons, had shuffled and been carried aboard two British hospital ships in the strangely-lighted harbor last night when London suddenly sent word halting the operation. The war office said a message from Berlin caused the delay.

"The government are in communication with the German government," it said, "and it is to be hoped it will be possible to make a further statement within 24 hours."

Harbor lights, glowing for the first time since Sept. 1, 1939, were extinguished. The delay was generally expected to be only temporary, however, and the German prisoners remained aboard. It was reported they would be joined by 50 German women, interned on the Isle of Man since the start of the war, who are to be exchanged for 50 British women held in Germany.

Police believe the blast was caused by political opponents of the Rexists, an organization predating Belgium's occupation by Germany.

Teams Playing Scoreless Ball In Series Game

New York	000 00
Brooklyn	000 00

EBBETS FIELD, BROOKLYN, Oct. 4 — (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees had failed to score at the end of the fifth inning in today's baseball contest, the third of the world series.

Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons was on the mound for the Dodgers, while the Yankees were depending on Lefty Marius Russo. Each team has won one game.

The weather was sunny and ideal for baseball, although the ground was slightly soggy after yesterday's heavy showers.

FIRST INNING

YANKEES—Sturm up: Sturm lifted a long fly to Reiser in dead centre. Rolfe up: Rolfe knocked a looping fly into short left centre and Medwick ran in fast to take it. Henrich up: Henrich popped a high foul back of the third base coaching box and Lavagetto bagged it.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

DODGERS—Reese up: Reese bunted on the second pitch and Russo came in to pick it up and throw him out. Herman up: Herman walked. Reiser up: Reiser bounded to Russo who wheeled and threw to Rizzuto forcing Herman at second, but the relay to first was not in time to catch Reiser. Medwick up: Medwick lined to Henrich up in deep right.

SECOND INNING

YANKEES—Dimaggio up: With the count two and two, Dimaggio smashed a ground single between short and third for his first hit of the series. Keller up: Keller grounded out to Camilli unassisted, Dimaggio stopping at second. Dickey up:

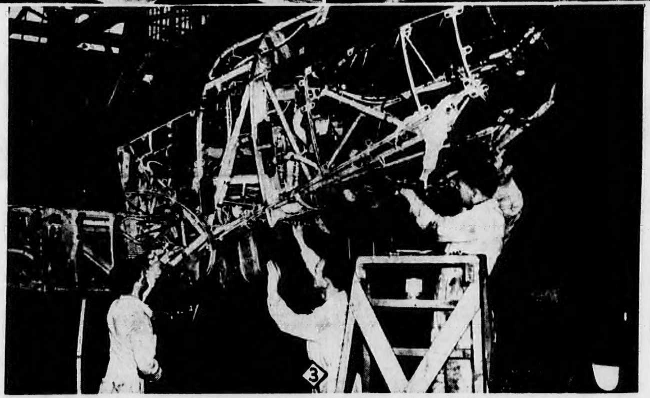
Serb Girl Executed

SZEGED, Hungary, Oct. 4—(AP)—A 21-year-old Serbian girl was executed Friday for attempting to bomb a library Sept. 19. Her 19-year-old girl companion, also a Serb, got 14 years in prison.



Young women, as well as young men, are serving in the technical army of victory. In the above scenes are pictured activities of some of these feminine soldiers at the huge repair and assembly plant of Mackenzie Air Service, Ltd., airport division. At the upper left are Miss Rita Martin, 11044 93 street, left, and Marjorie Pike, 10826 98 street, right, checking piston rods and other airplane engine parts in the big stockroom. In the upper right are Marion Hook, Archibald Block, left and Mrs. Ella Panter, 10656 106 avenue, unbaffled at the intricate job of assembling a plane elevator. Four mere males are shown below busy assembling a Fairey Battle plane. The four busy mechanics are, left to right: Ray Proctor, 12625 107 avenue; Howard Battrick, 10834 95 street; J. W. Spiece, 10040 102 street, and O. Dawson, 10512 98 street.

Winsome Young Women Working Efficiently In Technical Air Army

By JACK DELONG

East side, west side
And not a single frown,
The gang sang pooey to Hitler,
We're the birds to get him down;
Boys and girls together,
Roy and Rita and Don,
Will trip the light fantastic
When Adolf's dead and gone.

And there are hundreds and hundreds more like Roy and Rita and Don, boys and girls of Edmonton and northern Alberta, who are ganging up together to beat Hitler in a grand technological assault at the huge and ever-expanding Mackenzie Air Service, Ltd., airport division, repair and assembly plant.

Girls, or rather young ladies, winsome as ever in white coveralls, despite grease smears on otherwise rosy cheeks, perform a myriad of tasks that a few short years ago was thought only possible for the male members of the species.

Attractive young "eyefuls," by the dozen, are working side by side with big brothers, from other families, wielding spanners, scrapers, calipers, gauges and other implements that were once believed out of place in any but masculine hands.

IMPORTANT JOBS

Sparkling young women, many of them just out of high school, and working for the first time in their lives, are entrusted with the important job of checking and testing the powerful Wasp motors that power the big training bomber and gunnery planes that are assembled at the Mackenzie plant.

Young ladies who a few short months ago would have gasped in fright—either assumed or real—at the searing flame, shooting from the electrodes, are engaged in what was thought to be the solely male occupation of electric arc welding.

And women actually excel at such tasks as welding, woodwork, fabricwork and painting, sheet metal work, checking and inspecting.

It was really a brand new experience for The Bulletin reporter who made a tour of the Mackenzie plant, in company with a photographer, after being given the "green light" by the press censor for Canada at Ottawa.

The reporter and photographer were conducted through just some of the big plant and it must be said right here and now that a person

The Duke's presence, along with the Duchess, depends upon whether the weather clears enough to allow slippery roads to dry so they can motor to the school from the EP ranch.

Canada To Build Merchant Ships

MONTREAL, Oct. 4.—(BUP)—The president of the war-time Merchant Shipping Limited—H. R. MacMillan—says that when the war is over the British merchant fleet will be the oldest and slowest in the world.

Mr. MacMillan says that sinkings, present construction, and the fact that American ships—lent to Britain—must be returned will leave the British mercantile marine with old and slow ships.

After a lapse of years, he adds, Canadian shipyards will build 75 to 80 merchant vessels. He says that shipbuilding reduction in the United Kingdom, due to Britain's commitments to her own navy looms as a vital factor in the importance of Canada's ship building program.

F.C.A.A. Makes Adjustment Of Farmer Debts

Proposals under the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement act have been submitted by 47,000 farmers to their creditors, throughout the Dominion, it was disclosed by officials Saturday, and in nearly all these cases the debts were frozen and outstanding for many years. Adjustments made under the act have brought these debts within the ability of the farmer to pay.

The Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement act was drafted for the specific purpose of dealing with the financial difficulties of farmers whose indebtedness is beyond their capacity to pay.

Official receivers are located at convenient points where eligible farmers may have their financial burdens adjusted without cost to themselves.

Adjustment may be in the form of reduction of debts, lowering of interest rates and extension of time for payment as the individual circumstances demand.

The duty of the official receiver is to arrange for the meeting of creditors of the farmer and to endeavor to work out a voluntary adjustment. If unsuccessful, the farmer may petition the board of review to formulate a proposal.

Two boards of review have been set up in Alberta. The chairman of each board is a judge of the supreme court of Alberta. These boards call the farmer and his creditors before them and, after hearing all the interested parties and considering the independent appraisal of the farmer, fix terms of debt adjustment. If the creditors or the farmer decline to approve the terms of the board's adjustment, the board may nevertheless declare the same binding upon all parties.

At no time during the proceedings is the farmer dispossessed of his property, rather he is expected to carry on his regular farming operations.

Nazis Execute 7 Persons In Prague

BERLIN, Oct. 4—(AP)—Seven persons were executed in Prague for treasonable activity, it was announced today.

Three of those executed were described as Jews. They were tried on charges of preparation for treason, economic sabotage and unlawful possession of weapons.

A Prague newspaper said a Dr. Frankenberger, a section chief in the Bohemia-Moravia protectorate's agricultural ministry, had been arrested and accused of placing obstacles in the way of efficient food distribution.

Nazis Denounce Speech Reaction

BERLIN, Oct. 4—(UP)—Authorized German sources, denouncing American and British reaction to Adolf Hitler's speech, said today:

"These people must one day rue the behavior of their so-called leaders who stick their heads in the sand and let the Fuehrer's assertions pass over them like a storm."

Battle Is Raging On Long Line

By The Canadian Press

Big-scale Russian counterattacks in defence of the Crimea and heavy fighting along a line now running almost straight from that Black Sea peninsula to Leningrad were described today in dispatches on the Russian-German war.

From authoritative sources in London came word the Russian forces were driving from Melitopol in the Crimea in a determined offensive to save the Crimean peninsula which is vital to control of the Black Sea.

Moscow dispatches said the Red army had recaptured the city and railroad junction of "B" on the Karelian Isthmus, described as one of the decisive sectors of the Leningrad front.

In the southwestern sector the Russians reported the routing of a combined German-Rumanian force from 30 settlements.

PARACHUTISTS AIDING

Moscow said Marine parachutists were harassing the besiegers of Odessa, on the Black Sea, joining the forces with the guerrillas of that district. The Russian early-morning communique also told of the sinking of a German submarine by Red warships in northern waters.

The German high command merely reported that "in the east operations of far-reaching importance are under way" and that German bombers had attacked Moscow and Leningrad and Russian shipping in the Black Sea. Sinking of a transport ship of 2,000 tons was claimed.

Interpreting War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

IT is obvious that the Nazis sought to provide an impressive propaganda background for Hitler's latest speech to his people. For example, the speech was preceded by stepped-up, harvest moon bombing of England.

However, his announcement of a "gigantic new development" on the Russian front, initiated by the Germans within the last 48 hours, can not be classified as mere propaganda. It has ample supporting evidence from Russian sources.

It has seemed clear that the elements of a new crisis for the Russians were taking shape, close in the wake of the Kiev disaster. Against what is happening from the south flank of the Kiev bulge to the Black Sea under a screen of rigid censorship on both sides, Russian successes to the north are at best tactical rather than of strategic importance.

LENINGRAD FRONT

As for the northern front, London heard rumors that besieged Leningrad had been at least partially relieved and that communication with Introducing . . .

Pavey Candy Company Ltd.

The largest exclusive candy manufacturers in Western Canada, Pavey Candy Company Limited enjoys a wide reputation for the quality of its products. Throughout the west, this great Alberta company is well and favourably known.

For seven years before coming to Canada Mr. J. H. Pavey learned the intricate process of making candy in England. Then back in 1913 he started a retail business in Edmonton. The high quality of the candies made by Mr. Pavey was soon recognized by the public. The business grew until his company left the retail field to supply the demand of distributors all over the three western provinces.

The Pavey Candy plant is located at 9627 105A Avenue in Edmonton. Chocolates, caramels, jellies, toffees, licorice allsorts, fruit drops are all produced there under the personal supervision of Mr. Pavey. Each confection is a delight to the eyes and a treat to the taste. Pavey's Jellies flavoured with True Fruit Flavors—are recognized as the best jellies obtainable.

The firm does not now engage in retail business, but sells its Alberta Trade-Marked products through travellers who cover the three western provinces.

Pavey Candy Company is proud of its product. And Alberta is proud of the Pavey Candy Company.

Of the qualities to be desired in either an individual or a business organization reliability is one of the most important. That is why the Hayward Lumber Company Limited, chose it for their slogan. NAZI FORCES TIED UP IN RUSSIA

Conflict Will Develop Into Air War Of Attrition

Heavy Raids On Italy, Germany By Royal Air Force Are Beginning

By RICHARD MOWRER

CAIRO, Oct. 4.—(CDN)—The longer the greater part of Germany's forces are obliged to give their full attention to the Russians, the likelier it seems that the war in other zones will develop into an air war of attrition. The heavy raids on Italy and Germany by the Royal Air Force are a beginning. More and more emphasis is being placed on heavy, long-distance bombers and bombs so large that the radius of their blasting power will cause as much destruction as direct hits by more ancient bombs.

Probably the Germans are preparing along the same lines. They are known to be building hundreds of airdromes in the occupied countries. They have built many in Bulgaria and recently these new ones have been receiving stores of aviation fuel and bombs, according to reports reaching Istanbul while your correspondent was in Turkey. In some cases, according to the same reports, the Germans have evacuated villages and hamlets which happened to be near the new airfields so as to use the cottages as hiding places for bombs, fuel and spare parts.

With the Reich sprawling over most of Europe, including Italy, Axis communication is longer and more vulnerable to the effects of wear and tear and sabotage—and bombings. In night raids the R.A.F. has been blasting railroad centres in western Germany and northern Italy.

UNABLE TO REPLACE

Rolling stock is said to be at least one thing which Germany has been unable to replace swiftly or in adequate quantity to meet the needs of war. Years before the war started Germany's rolling stock was under-going severe strain because Hitler's rearmament program was concentrating on other things.

By invasion Germany has acquired the rolling stock of other countries—but also more mileage. With the war's third winter approaching and the mass of the German army deep in Russia, much will be expected of the railroads; to ship coal where it is needed as well as to supply the normal requisites of a country at war.

MORE VULNERABLE

Germany's communications are now more vulnerable than they ever have been. In France, Belgium and the Balkans, sabotage is stabbing at communications. Perhaps the time is coming when flying fortresses and the like will carry out daylight raids on tempting targets, thereby spurring on the Czech, Hungarian, Rumanian, Bulgarian, Italian, Greek, French, Dutch, Belgian, Norwegian and Russian saboteurs. In the Balkans there are railroad tunnels, bridges and fancy mountain railroads on which the Germans are vitally dependent for the swift transfer of treir troops from north to south or east to west.

Russian bombers are supposed to have put the famous Cerna-Voda railroad bridge across the lower Danube out of commission for a couple of months. Except for possible pontoon bridge this bridge has the distinction of being the only one crossing the Danube for a stretch of hundreds of miles.

There are plenty of other vulnerable targets in the Germans' communications network for allied bombers to attack. But the bombers must be big and adapted for daylight raids. It seems to anti-Axis students of the situation that now is the time for long-distance stratosphere bombers to do their stuff. Heavy daylight raids on Germany's communications probably would assist the Russians indirectly and certainly would bother the Germans.

R.A.F. Bombers Hit At Targets Over Wide Area

LONDON, Oct. 4—(CP)—British air raids overnight against German-held territory from Denmark to northern France were announced by the air ministry today.

Besides attacks on the often-raided ports of Rotterdam, Antwerp, Dunkerque and Brest, it said coastal command planes bombed German airdromes at Aalborg, in Denmark, and R.A.F. fighters blasted another in northern France with aerial cannon and machine-gun fire.

The German air force was comparatively inactive, only a few planes appearing over eastern England and Scotland. A communique said the raiders dropped a few bombs but no casualties were reported.

The night pounding followed a daylight assault yesterday on docks at Ostend when several fires were started. A German supply ship protected by seven anti-aircraft vessels also was attacked yesterday. One anti-aircraft vessel was sunk and the supply ship and three other escort vessels were set afire. The rest were damaged seriously.

During yesterday's daylight sorties three British fighter planes were destroyed.

She and one child were taken from the plane last night with all other occupants. The other child still is missing.

The plane's nose broke off and it flooded quickly. United States navy tugs got the plane from the water onto a lighter during the night.

Teams Playing Scoreless Ball In Series Game

With a count of one strike and two balls Dickey lifted a foul which Camilli took just back of first. Gordon up: On a two and two pitch, Gordon lifted a high fly which Walker came over into centre field to catch.

DODGERS—Lavagetto up: Lavagetto drew a base on balls on five pitches. Camilli up: With the count three and two, Camilli looped a liner over Russo's head and the ball bounced just in front of Rizzuto, who took it and stepped on second, then threw to Sturm for a double play. Walker up: Walker knocked an easy grounder to Rolfe and was thrown out.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

THIRD INNING

YANKEES—Rizzuto up: Rizzuto bounced to Fitzsimmons and was thrown out. Russo up: Medwick ran far over into left centre to drag down Russo's fly. Sturm up: Sturm hit the first pitch back at Herman and was thrown out.

No runs, no hits, no errors. none left.

DODGERS—Owen up: Owen lifted a fly to Dimaggio in short centre. Fitzsimmons up: Fitzsimmons raised a high fly to Keller. Reese up: After taking a called strike, Reese grounded out to Rizzuto.

Dimaggio up: With the was safe. Dimaggio up: ith the count one and one on Dimaggio, Owen threw to Camilli and picked Henrich off base. Henrich apparently slid hard against Camilli's legs in trying to get back and Camilli shoved Henrich's head down as the runner was trying to arise. Umpire Goetz rushed over and pushed Camilli away. After taking another called strike, Dimaggio raised a high fly which Camilli took on the edge of the grass midway between first and second. He tossed the ball aside quickly and Dimaggio raced on to second insisting that Camilli had not held possession of the ball. However, he was overruled.

No runs. one hit, no errors, none left.

DODGERS.—Herman up. Gordon made a nice pickup of a smash by Herman and threw him out. Reiser up. Reiser lined to Gordon, who did not have to move for the ball. Medwick up. Medwick topped the ball down the third base line, and while the Yankees hovered around and waited for it to roll foul, it came to a stop in fair territory for a single, and Brooklyn's first hit of the game. Lavagetto up. Gordon made a spectacular leap to stab Lavagetto's liner.

FIFTH INNING

YANKEES—Pete Coscarart, who had warmed up in Brooklyn's bullpen during the second inning, replaced Herman at second base for the Dodgers. Keller up: On the first pitch Keller grounded to Coscarart and was thrown out. Dickey up: Dickey drove a long fly to Reiser in right centre. It was announced that Herman had hurt his side in batting practice before the game. Gordon up: After looking at two balls, Gordon drove a liner which struck the railing in front of the centre field stands about ten feet high and 390 feet from the plate and bounced back onto the field for a triple. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Hull Declares Ship Torpedoing Act Of Piracy

By JOHN R. BEAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4—(BUP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today denounced the sinking of the American-owned Tanker I. C. White as apparently "another act of lawlessness, piracy and attempted frightfulness" which is part of a plan to drive people from Atlantic sea lanes.

Hull added that the act apparently also was part of the general movement of world conquest. He spoke strongly in support of a policy of self-defense as against ordinary interpretations of international law.

Speaking at greater length and more forcefully than usual, Hull made clear that the attack on the I. C. White was viewed more seriously than previous sinkings.

NO DETAILED REPORT

"It seems to be another act of lawlessness, piracy and attempted frightfulness in connection with the general movement to drive people off the Atlantic ocean, which is part of the world movement of conquest," he told a press conference.

Reporters asked whether the fact that the ship was under the direction of the British government, a belligerent, might not alter the situation under international law.

Hull replied that he had not obtained a detailed report on the incident as yet.

He added, however, that the main point to consider in such a situation is that when someone is moving towards peaceful people with a gun, the threatened persons must defend themselves. The aggressors cannot invoke the law against a person acting in self-defence, he said.

34 MEN OF CREW ARE NOW PICKED UP

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Rescue ships reported today they had picked up 34 of the 38-man crew of the American owned tanker I. C. White, torpedoed in the South Atlantic last Saturday, and that they expected to arrive here with them Tuesday.

The four missing men were last seen clinging to a life raft.

Sinking of the 7,052-ton tanker, which flew the flag of Panama and was operating in the British service, was disclosed late yesterday when the American freighter West Nilus reported picking up 18 men in a lifeboat 450 miles east of Recife, Brazil. The West Nilus agents said today the correct count was 17.

Today the American freighter Delnorte informed the consulate she had picked up 17 more men at latitude 10:16 south, longitude 35:23 west, which is only about 30 miles off Maceio, Brazil, a port 100 miles south of Recife.

The I. C. White was commanded by Capt. William Mello of Everett, Mass.

Scene of the torpedoing and circumstances surrounding it remained undisclosed. The West Nilus message said it occurred last Saturday.

'A Fortnight With Fortitude' Is Fitting Title For Rogers' Diary

By D. B. ROGERS

Managing Editor Regina Leader Post
Special Cable to the Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Oct. 4.—"A Fortnight With Fortitude" is the title I would choose for a diary covering the first two weeks of my visit in this beleaguered and unbeaten land. The diary itself has not been kept nor written except in memory's pages, but the title remains as an apt and accurate description of the deepest and most indelible impression of my brief stay.

D. B. ROGERS

With it, however, goes this mental reservation — a question which cannot be clearly answered on such short acquaintance—whether or not there really is too much confidence or too little concern amongst the people and in official circles.

This obviously is a constant worry to Mr. Churchill. He keeps tempering his pronouncements indicating progress with warnings of greater tests to come. The prime minister must have been pleased last night when Hitler played right into his hands by telling the British people "that if they do not realize that this war is not a pleasant thing for them I can only say that they will come to know it is true as I am standing here."

QUICK COMEBACK

Hitler's speech was a quick comeback at Churchill's chiding remark earlier this week regarding his long silence. The London press today generally regards the Fuehrer's latest speech as more bark and less bite and definitely defensive in character. It is suggested that he would not have left the eastern front unless an extreme necessity existed to mollify the German people and prepare them for a long winter's struggle ahead.

But the British people must also be prepared, their morale seems at a high pitch and I have not encountered the slightest trace of defeatism or anything remotely resembling it. I would not want to convey from an earlier suggestion of a possible feeling of overconfidence that complacency had again set in. Far from it, but nonetheless a slight trace of doubt remains as to whether in London, for instance, where no major raid has taken place in five months, the people have not been lulled into a sense of false security.

The press for example is now in the midst of a spirited campaign to discontinue the black out, adopting instead the Moscow system of using master switch to shut lights off only when enemy planes are approaching in strength.

Arguments presented are that the long winter darkness will have a harmful effect upon the spirit of the people and also that production will be materially slowed down through transport difficulties and shorter working hours.

BAD FOR MORALE

Col. Josiah Wedgewood backs the campaign today in a prominent article in the London Express in which he says, "If the blitz is good for morale, then the blackout is certainly bad. In fact, I object to the blackout mainly for its effect on morale. It inspires fear. It is symbolic of fear. It signifies fear for ourselves not for our cause."

He criticises the government for not recognizing the circumstances of air war have changed with Hitler preoccupied in Russia and our aerial arm greatly strengthened.

"I would not have Moscow proud in light while London cowers in darkness," he concludes in his biting article.

STILL CARRY BEDROLLS

The extent to which people still do dread the menace of night raids was forcefully driven home to me by a visit to the tube stations where thousands still carry bedrolls every night to sleep. There is no section of the tube not being used by trains where accommodation is available for almost 10,000 sleepers.

When I visited it last night there were several thousand men, women and children there. None seemed actually frightened but just frank in facing danger.

This attitude, the opponents of the blackout believe, might develop into a dull acceptance which would not be good for general morale.

Maybe the moonlight nights add to the immediate feeling of danger and also it must be remembered that it was just one year ago that the Nazi onslaught was at its worst.

Herbert Morrison, minister of home security reminded the other day that from Sept. 7, 1940 there was a raid on London every night but two until the end of November. There were 23 substantial raids in September, 30 in October and 28 in November.

400 OVER LONDON

On one October night there were 400 bombers over London.

Since our own arrival here no air raid siren has sounded but ack ack could be dimly heard from the outskirts of the city for two nights as planes flying very high crossed toward other objectives.

Purple lights went on, signifying that enemy planes were approaching and roof watchers were on the alert. Nothing else has happened and the city is infinitely better prepared for a blitz now than a year ago thanks to the energy of the minister of home security.

Fire protection particularly has been developed and the compulsory fire watch system whereby every able bodied man not in the services is required to take his turn, has been specially effective for it was fire bombs which caused the greatest damage a year ago.

It was odd to find a poster on a scarred wall in the worst damaged section around St. Paul's the other day bearing this message: "Do you know that Canada besides growing millions of acres of wheat has great mineral wealth and that 90 per cent of the world's nickel is mined in Canada; that Canadian mass production of airplanes and munitions is in full swing."

There in the midst of devastation and desolution that is truly appalling stands this message of encouragement, and make no mistake about it, the British people everywhere do look on the Canadian forces here and overseas and over sea resources for production as adding vast strength to the cause.

Heckler Plays Havoc With Hitler's Speech

LONDON, Oct. 4.—(BUP)—Russia's radio pirate played havoc during the night on recorded German broadcasts of Hitler's speech to the German people.

The Russian voice cut in so often that the German announcer said the speech would be repea'ed for the benefit of those who—as he put it—may not have heard it clearly.

When Hitler said Germany had only three divisions on the Russian frontier July first, the Soviet heckler asked:

"How many?"

"Our soldiers," said Hitler, "stand at the gates of Leningrad."

"And how long have they been standing there?" put in the Russian voice.

Again, Hitler cited how far Nazi forces have marched into Russia. And the Soviet radio pirate replied:

"Wait until you try to march them out again."

German Division Moves On Belgrade

ZAGREB, Croatia, (via Berlin,) Oct. 4—(AP)—An entire German mechanized division—about 12,000 men—was reliably reported today to be moving slowly through southern Serbia toward Belgrade, old capital of Yugoslavia, to mop up Serb guerilla bands.

The German air force, co-operating with the drive, has bombed Leskovan and Nishumka.

Serbia's industrial situation is essentially serious on account of a lack of coal. This shortage is reported due to sabotage as well as German strafing and bombing. Pre-war production was 125,000 tons monthly. It has now dropped to 15,000 tons.

Captured German Sub Reaches Port

LONDON, Oct. 4 — (CP) — The German submarine U-570, which a Lockheed bomber captured Sept. 8, sailed into a British port Friday flying the white ensign of the Royal Navy.

British submarine officers examined the croft and termed it "technically superior to British submarines in minor details" but "inferior in most others."

The two British lieutenants and 20 other sailors who manned her en route to port for examination in drydock feasted on Danish hams, canned butter, and Spanish wine found in the larder, they said.

The U-570 was described as a "fairly new" submarine 220 feet long displacing approximately 600 tons on the surface with a normal complement of 40.

"Is It Nothing To You"?

During the last twenty years, seven thousand nine hundred and sixty-nine persons have been burned to death in Canada or otherwise lost their lives because of fire. Twenty-five thousand others have been seriously injured. Property valued at more than $749,000,000 has been destroyed, a sum equal to one-quarter of the amount being spent this year on the national war effort, civil government and financial aid to Britain. These figures are official. They summarize the results of 863,000 separate fires which occurred during this twenty year period. They do not, as figures cannot, picture the suffering and misery and hardship endured by not less than one hundred thousand persons, perhaps two or three times that number, who in one way or another were affected by the deaths and destruction.

It is also stated officially that at least eighty per cent of fires originate directly or indirectly through "inexcusable ignorance and neglect and are therefore preventable". Apply this percentage to the figures given above and there is presented the shocking conclusion that nearly five thousand Canadians have been burned to death or killed, twenty thousand more seriously injured, and a half billion dollars' worth of property turned to ashes, in the last twenty years, because of "inexcusable ignorance and neglect" in the starting or handling of fire.

These are facts every Canadian should let sink in, and pass along to others—particularly to children. If this horrible vision of charred bodies, screaming sufferers and ruined homes does not shock the reader or the hearer into common sense in respect to the fire hazard, what could do so?

The Fifteenth Week

The outstanding event in this fifteenth week of the Russian campaign has been the remarkable turn in the battle of Leningrad. A week ago Berlin was predicting the early capture of the city. Now it is unable to deny that the initiative there has been taken by the besieged garrison.

The Nazi investing lines have been smashed on the southerly sector and communication re-established with Moscow, opening the road for reinforcements and supplies. Whether the counter-attack has yet spent its force is uncertain, but the end of the week leaves the attackers in a definitely worse position, with a heavy casualty list and huge losses of planes, tanks and guns.

This reverse has done something more. It has shown to himself, to the enemy, and to the world, that the Russian soldier is as good a fighter as the German soldier, and that his leadership is also as good. The effect upon both the Red army and the enemy will be considerable. Next to their Italian allies the Nazis despised the Russians as fighters and as strategists. They have had cause to change their opinion during the last three months, but no previous encounter so signally demonstrated the mistake.

Ten days ago Leningrad was bottled up. Nothing remained but to pound it into ruins with bombs and shells and "mop up" the debris. So the German high command thought, and said in its official and semi-official communiques. It knows better now. With at least equal numbers and mechanized equipment, its troops have been outfought, and out-generalled as well. The communiques this week have been talking about events fifteen hundred miles away from Leningrad—to divert the attention of the German people from the defeat and the carnage.

The Internal Front

It was officially announced at Berlin that 24 Czechs, including two former generals, had been sentenced to death for plotting to re-establish an independent Czech state. It was also given out that Premier Elias had been arrested for high treason—to Hitler of course. And a day later came news that he had been condemned to death. As Elias had held office at pleasure of the Nazi officials, he was presumably their choice as head of the dummy cabinet. His arrest and sentence proclaim that Nazi brutalities were too much for even the tractable premier.

Reports of this kind are now common. They come daily from one occupied country or another, varying in detail but telling the same story of incipient revolt spreading everywhere, and of the frantic efforts of the gauleiters and the gestapo to maintain a semblance of order and a pretence that Nazi rule is acceptable to the subject peoples.

The pretence is getting difficult to maintain. The claim that Communists and Jews were the only disturbers is no longer supportable. It is openly admitted that the Czechs doomed to death were patriots whose offence was that they wanted to restore the freedom of their country.

The "new order" is an order of force. It was imposed by violence, can only exist by suppression. Cruelty and terrorism are all it offers to the captive nations.

These are not the means by which men once free can be reconciled to slavery. Instead of the "collaboration" demanded there is sabotage. The oppressors are sowing the seeds of their own undoing. Already there is evidence of that, for every punitive edict is followed by growing resistance, passive and active. Where the alien masters were punishing individuals three months ago they are now shooting dozens and sending scores to concentration camps. There could be no surer way to provoke latent hostility into open rebellion.

Getting Ready For Winter

The bombing attack on Turin, Milan and Genoa implies that the industries destroyed there last winter have been rebuilt since the Germans took control of Italy, and have been important sources for the equipment needed to replace the heavy losses in Russia. The visit of the R.A.F. is an extension of the factory-destroying operations they have been carrying on systematically and over a widening range in Germany, and was no doubt made with a view to cutting off Italian munition supplies from the Russian front.

Also of course to further weaken the Axis position in the Mediterranean area in advance of the expected winter campaign there. All has not been quiet on that south-eastern front while the fighting in Russia has engaged major attention. Italian convoys en route to Africa have suffered disaster from submarines and air bombers. Sicily, southern Italy and Axis bases in Greece have been blasted periodically, the Libyan ports have been bombed repeatedly.

In the hinterland British and Russian forces have occupied Persia and the Nazi officials and fifth columnists there have been ousted. Turkey is now backed and flanked on either side by territory in control of its friends, and in position to resist Axis demands for a road to the oil fields.

The raid on northern Italy's industrial area is likely the prelude to intensifying air attacks on that country and on Axis-held territory in the Balkans and in North Africa. When snow puts an end to aggressive fighting on the Russian front—if it does, and the Fuehrer turns attention to a winter drive for the oil fields in the east, he will find conditions there far less favorable than they were six months ago.

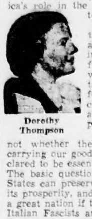
Fundamental Issues, Not Incidents, Should Shape War Course

America Must Decide Program on Basis of Reason; Not Prejudice

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Before suspending this column for four weeks of vacation, it seems fitting to analyze a little more completely the basic issues of our day, which are war and peace. Actually, war and peace are part of the same issue, which is that of America's role in the world of today and tomorrow.



Dorothy Thompson

We are in danger of timidly and conventionally going to war over incidents, instead of over fundamental issues. If we do so, we are likely to compromise the cause for which we fight, and confound confusion, both at home and amongst the peoples of the world.

The basic question is not whether the Nazis sink our ships carrying our goods in waters we have declared to be essential to American defense. The basic question is whether the United States can preserve its institutions; insure its prosperity, and maintain its equality as a great nation if the Nazis, allied with the Italian Fascists and the Japanese, control Europe, Asia, and Africa—that is to say, nine-tenths of humanity, most of the land surface of the earth, and the strategic points on all the oceans and seas.

The question is whether, were Britain defeated or forced into a peace of collaboration, we could ever demobilize our armed forces, or be safe from blockade, and from political, economic, and eventually armed intervention in Latin America on the side of anti-American revolutionary movements there.

Demands Answer

The answer to these questions cannot be awaited. The answer is a matter of judgment and statesmanship. If, on the basis of the existing evidence and in considered reason, the answer to these questions is that our institutions would be imperiled by a Nazi victory, that we would be exposed to blockade, that Nazi intervention in the western hemisphere, already vast, would become aggressive and virulent under the spur of victory over the old world; if, in cool judgment it is foreseen that we should be unable to demobilize, unable to take the initiative, and be confronted by a hostile power and counter-revolutionary movement in possession of vastly greater material resources, industrial potential, shipbuilding and plane-building facilities, and trained manpower than we possess or could mobilize—if this is what is foreseen—then we should go to war and go under the best possible conditions, while we have Britain and Russia as allies.

And if we go to war, we should go to war because we foresee what would happen in case of a Nazi victory, and because we do not intend to allow it to happen. And we should go to war, not only in defense of the United States, but in defense of humanity, for the noblest of causes and the loftiest of aims.

Must Decide

No one, who is not able in his own mind to answer these basic questions, has the right to appeal to or harangue the people of the United States in behalf of this course or that one.

If there are those who believe, with conviction, that this country can live, prosper, engage with absolute equality in commerce and political relations with all other countries, enjoy its historic freedom from militarism, maintain its traditional liberties, and pursue its destiny with the Nazis in control of the rest of the world—if there are those who so believe, then it is their duty to counsel this country to keep out of war.

If there are those who believe that a Nazi victory over Russia and Britain, with the repercussions of that victory in the Far East, in Canada, and in South America, would put the United States in a position of disastrous isolation, then it is their duty to counsel the people of this nation to take up arms.

Candor Needed

So far there are very few persons in public life who are willing to give a candid answer to these questions and draw the clear conclusion from it, one way or the other.

Mr. Hoover counsels us to keep out of war, not because he thinks a Nazi victory would be a matter of indifference, but because he thinks Britain, Russia, and the revolt of the subject populations of Europe will defeat Hitler without us. This seems to me to be the most pusillanimous and unrealistic of attitudes. The continuation of the heroic defense of their land by the Russians, the continuation of the British resistance against great odds, and the very revolt of the subject populations, is stimulated and maintained by the conviction that America will not let Hitler win. Should doubt arise on this question, the entire constellation of things would change, and a world-wide crisis of appalling dimensions would be precipitated immediately. Indeed, it is not outside the range of possibilities that the entire old world would achieve some sort of artificial unity on the basis of its hatred of the new world.

For the Nazis have always regarded the United States as their greatest ideological enemy; and the struggling and oppressed peoples would certainly be propagandized into the view that the United States had proved an unreliable, false, and craven friend.

Buy Peace

Among the isolationists, only Mr. Lindbergh has, it seems to me, really faced these questions. He, also, has not raised or faced them publicly, but there are things in his speeches that indicate that the man who refuses to explain himself knows what he is doing. Unless I have utterly misread his speeches, and I do not think I have for they have always had a very familiar ring, Mr. Lindbergh wants us to buy our way into Nazi graces, and share the world with them under a Fuehrer and an American Nazism of our own.

Leaving aside the fact that this would mean the end of the America of Jefferson and Lincoln, it is also, I believe, highly unrealistic. For in such a setup we should be a very weak junior partner, and weak junior partners become subservient or are liquidated.

At any rate, these are the questions that Americans must answer, and they must answer them courageously, regardless of whether the conclusion to which they come is pleasant, or likely to make them unpopular. The business of patriots in a moment like this is not to be popular, but to be right.

And if we fight, let us fight for fundamental things; let us fight for the basic issue of freedom and equality, as between persons and nations. Let us not fight over "incidents."

A Better Post-War World

Canada Will Take Care of Her Veterans When Victory Has Been Won

By HAROLD L. WEIR

For centuries it has been axiomatic that the saddest and most costly aftermath of war has been the condition of retired soldiers. From the Middle Ages down, half the social disruption of continental Europe has been caused by great hordes of wounded or jobless veterans released without hope upon their respective countries after the great wars that periodically ravaged that continent.

Harold L. Weir

Caught up in the whirlpools of national passions, few of these men could ever readjust themselves to the stream of normal living.

The hapless condition of these men, therefore, was usually a greater cause of social dislocation than the primary objectives for which they had fought.

In other words, war always created a greater problem than the particular one it was waged to settle.

Throughout all the ages in Europe, restless veterans have been the focal points for all political turbulence. Being unabsorbed back into society, after their martial adventures, they carried over into civil life the tradition of violence they had learned in military life.

The problem of the returned soldier has frequently created more perplexity than the problems of war.

Doubtful Recruits

When a decent interval occurred between wars, the fate of the returned soldier was usually forgotten and no difficulty was experienced in recruiting. But when wars crowded hard and fast upon each other, young men held back. The pomp and circumstance of war was not sufficiently glamorous to offset the warning spectacle of jobless, friendless and starving veterans.

In recent years, of course, an earnest effort has been made to compensate the citizen soldier for his service.

After World War I, for instance, a system of pensions was instituted; cash gratuities were paid upon discharge and machinery was set up to try to find jobs for ex-soldiers.

It was a relatively clumsy effort because there was little system to it. It was based on the totally erroneous principle of reward rather than re-establishment.

Its administrators, competent and conscientious as they were, forgot that one cannot pay for such services. You cannot compensate a man for years ripped clean out of his life.

The only adequate service you can render him is to fit him back, with as little scar as possible, into the tissue of civilian life. You cannot altogether obviate the break in the line of his life caused by a period of soldiering. But you can splice the broken ends together.

This is the sensible approach to the problem. It is the humane and economical solution.

And it is the essence of the plan of reestablishment that has just come out of office of the Hon. Ian Mackenzie in Ottawa which gives Canada the most enlightened, the most intelligent and the most hopeful post-war program of any nation on earth.

Constructive

The thing that happens to young men in war is not an economic thing. It is true that many soldiers are impoverished when they are discharged from the army. But they usually have the stamina and the courage to repair that deficiency.

It is not a social blight that falls upon them. On the contrary, many discharged soldiers are more social-minded than their more cautious friends.

What actually happens to them is a purely chronological phenomenon. Civilian and army life do not march at the same pace. And when they come out of the army, they find that they are equipped to take up civilian life at the point they left off. Unfortunately, civilian life has marched on and left them behind. They are actually thrown into a new world as unfamiliar and as incomprehensible to them as it is to a newly-born child.

This is the problem of the discharged soldier. Up until now it has never been met.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie has evolved a plan for meeting it by affording the veteran, first and foremost, with every facility and every assistance for catching up.

It is the only truly constructive plan of reestablishment ever presented anywhere.

Educative

Mr. Mackenzie's plan is primarily educative.

If a discharged soldier has a trade or a profession, he will be brought up-to-date in that trade or profession before resuming civilian life.

If he has no trade or profession, the Canadian Government will endeavor to give him one.

He will be paid a living allowance while he receives vocational training, while he completes an interrupted educational course, while awaiting returns from independent enterprises such as farming, while having his health rebuilt or while awaiting employment opportunity.

There are many other details with regard to pensions, etc., that have been worked out carefully in the light of experience.

But the chief feature of the plan is that, on the one side, it provides the discharged man with security while, on the other side, it not only provides an incentive to seek employment, but affords the opportunity for a man to improve his employability through training and education.

In short, Mr. Mackenzie proposes to eliminate, so far as possible, the effects of the interruption in civilian life caused by war service.

Justice

This new reestablishment plan is an act of justice.

It is also an act of faith because it signifies an utter belief in an early British victory.

But, perhaps more than these, it definitely removes some of those doubts which disturb the mind of the thoughtful man who considers enlistment.

Undoubtedly, the bogey of post-war helplessness is a far greater deterrent than any fear of death or injury.

The new plan does away with that apprehension of helplessness when the war is over.

It should, therefore, stimulate enlistment.

It undoubtedly places Canada far in the lead of all other nations in the matter of caring for the men who shoulder arms.

Nazis' Trick Propaganda

Faked Photographs and Other Fancy Stunts Used by Huns in Denmark

FROM THE PROVIDENCE BULLETIN

A Danish language weekly paper published in New York recently exposed one of the tricks used by the Nazi propaganda ministry. As the story was told, a prominent Danish citizen dropped into a film theatre not long ago to see a newsreel purporting to show the entrance of the Nazi forces into Copenhagen. He had seen none of the actual demonstration as he had been away from home at the time.

He was dismayed to see his countrymen greeting the marching Germans with a general display of enthusiasm, and in a moment it was with profound consternation that he saw in the front row of the cheering crowd his own wife, apparently the most enthusiastic of the Danish spectators.

With a heavy heart the gentleman went home, and there he gave his wife a vigorous bawling-out and loudly accused her of treachery. The lady was surprised, and sure of her innocence of any such conduct, she protested and demanded to see the film with her own eyes. So they went to see the newsreel, and the wife perceived at once that in the film she was wearing an old hat which she had not used during the previous two years. Obviously the picture was a phony. On the strength of this report masculine respect for millinery must rise at least 50 per cent. Women are certainly never confused about their old hats and their new ones.

The mystery of the hat and the picture was soon solved. The scene in which the lady actually appeared had been lifted bodily from an old newsreel showing the royal Danish couple driving through the Copenhagen streets and it had been cleverly cut into the film showing the arrival of the German troops. This sort of propaganda is elementary to a regime that is determined to prove that Nazi invasion is warmly welcomed by the people of a conquered nation.

Bank Heretic

THE NEW YORK TIMES

A few years ago when Montague Norman, governor of the Bank of England, was visiting this country he was asked what he thought of John Maynard Keynes. "Keynes?" said Mr. Norman. "Never heard of him. Who is he?" That was just the governor's mischievous way of expressing his complete and utter disapproval of England's leading exponent of devaluation, currency management and deliberate inflation to bring about economic recovery. To Governor Norman, pillar of gold-standard, central-banking orthodoxy, Maynard Keynes was a heretic in outer darkness.

Times have changed. The 70-year-old governor of the Bank of England has just announced that he will continue as governor for another term. But he has also announced that Mr. Keynes will become a member of the bank's "court of directors."

Mr. Keynes's managed money theories have made much headway in recent years, and the development of a war economy in England has brought with it the adoption of many of his proposals, including the recent introduction of compulsory savings.

But hitherto his sphere of influence has been in Whitehall rather than in Threadneedle Street. Now the last citadel has fallen. The Bank of England, ancient symbol of traditional finance, is to have on its board the man whose economic philosophy is summed up in the phrase: "Finance is humbug."

SERVICE DE L'INFORMATION "FRANCE LIBRE"

Quelques-uns des journaux que les Français redigent et font circuler au peril de leur vie, viennent de nous parvenir. Chaque ligne de ces publications témoigne de la volonté de libérer le sol national. Voici les principaux organes de résistance à l'asservissement:

"Valmy". Organe de la résistance française à l'Oppression "un seul ennemi, l'envahisseur."

"Liberté". Un peuple n'est vaincu que lorsqu'il accepte de l'être. (Citation du Maréchal Foch.)

"Le Feu". Force de la révolution française par la purification des coeurs, des esprits et des moeurs.

"Ce que veulent les Jeunes". Une Patrie libre débarrassée des trusts comme de toute influence étrangère, dans laquelle chacun vive par le travail et ou il ne soit plus nécessaire d'être traitre ou profiteur pour être puissant. Une Europe ou les rapports entre individus soient ceux d'hommes libres; ou tous les peuples davantage préoccupés de beurre et de blé que de canons, coopèrent à la restauration pacifique de l'idéal humain souillé par l'exploitation capitaliste ou nazie.

Extraits du journal "Liberté":

Nous mettons en garde les meilleurs de nos militants contre deux dangers:

1.—Celui d'une agitation prématurée qui compromettrait l'avenir en attirant trop vivement l'attention de l'ennemi.

2.—Celui de compromission avec des agents doubles, souvent étrangers, qui travaillent en réalité pour la Gestapo. Le mouvement "Liberté" a fait ses preuves, restons nous-mêmes. Vos chefs ont pris tous les contacts nécessaires et le jour venu, realiseront dans l'unité française leur front unique contre l'ennemi. D'ici là, continuons notre oeuvre propre; reconstituer en zone libre l'unité de la pensée française à l'égard de l'ennemi.

Sous le signe de la collaboration, les arrestations, les exécutions de Français patriotes continuent. Parmi les condamnés à mort du mois dernier, on cite plusieurs prêtres dont le curé de Conchy (Pas de Calais).

Deux nouvelles grandes affaires françaises sont en voie, avec la complicité du gouvernement, de passer aux mains des Allemands. Cette fois il s'agit de nos deux plus grandes marques de moteurs d'aviation: "Gnome et Rhone" et "Hispano Suiza".

Les besoins de la France en avoine sont de 32 millions de quintaux. Cette année, par suite de l'absence des prisonniers et de l'impossibilité de cultiver dans plusieurs régions, la production a baissé de 14 millions de quintaux. Sur ce chiffre insuffisant, l'occupant a annoncé qu'il prélèvera 6 millions de quintaux. Impossible désormais de nourrir ce qui nous reste de bétail, ni d'ensémencer. Une année d'organisation allemande aura supprimé non seulement le cheptel français, mais toutes les réserves européennes.

Sur 110,000 tonnes de pommes de terre que produisait la zone occupée, on nous en a laissé 3.550. Ironie amère de la "générosité" allemande.

Et malgré ces chiffres, on nous parle de la responsabilité de l'Angleterre. Le blocus. Si les Allemands répètent si souvent ce mot, c'est qu'ils en ont peur. Or l'Angleterre a laissé venir sur Marseille, de la seule, Afrique, plus de 2.000.000 de tonnes de produits alimentaires. Mais les Français n'en ont eu qu'une faible part.

Il est passé ces mois derniers par le détroit de Gibraltar 1.500 navires français se rendant vers la France. Les Anglais n'en ont arrêté que 12. Est-ce un blocus systématique?

"L'Ordre Nouveau. . . . de la servitude" écrit en editorial: "Les Allemands parlent d'un "ordre nouveau" et invitent tous les pays de l'Europe à prendre leur place dans ce paradis germanique. Pourquoi ces mêmes Allemands et leurs complices étrangers, qui criaient ouvertement il y a quelques mois que tous les peuples non allemands devaient être réduits en esclavage, parcequ'ils étaient des peuples inférieurs, proposent-ils maintenant une association dans l'ordre nouveau? La réponse est simple: la résistance britannique est en train de devenir l'offensive brittanique et a déjoué les plans des Boches."

Major And Minor Notes

By John Oliver

MATTERS musical are well under way. Teachers and their classes have settled down for the season and various groups have reorganized and are busily engaged with their programs. When the regular Women's Musical Club season opens on Oct. 18 at the Masonic Temple, the entertainment will be provided by Viola Morris, soprano and Victoria Anderson, contralto, know as "England's famous two-part singers." These two young ladies, who as the London Morning Post puts it "have brought to perfection the art of singing duets" promise one of the finest inaugural programs in the musical club's history. Coming just a few days after the first concert in the same organization's "Celebrity Series" of concerts, with Gyorgy Sandor as the attraction, the club appears on the threshold of an unusually successful season.

Misses Morris and Anderson come in the wake of enviable reputations established in London, Melbourne, Brisbane, New Zealand, the Dutch East Indies, Honolulu and Vancouver. The London Telegraph found that "The blend of voices alone was a source of constant delight and the ensemble as perfectly balanced in the long sweeping phrases of Purcell and Handel as it was in the admirably chosen examples of today" while the Times declared "They make an ideal pair of two-part singers. The program was admirably put together and executed in a masterly manner with precision of phrasing and clear enunciation. The total effect was as delightful as it was unusual.

Luther King, tenor, one of the foremost Negro artists will appear in recital at First Baptist church on Thursday and Friday evenings. He has won wide renown both as a soloist giving programs of lieder and folk songs and as featured artist with such notable organizations as the Fisk Jubilee Singers. His wife, Jean Houston, is his accompanist. Judging from the reports of his singing received from other points, his appearance here should add to his triumphs.

Mrs. James B. Carmichael, general musical director of the Edmonton Civic Opera Society, states that Dr. Paul Hervieux will portray the role of Capt. Massakroff of the Bulgarian Army, in the Chocolate Soldier, to be given at the Empire theatre next month. It had been announced that Jack Williams, popular bass soloist, would take this role, but as he found it impossible to do so, Dr. Hervieux has been assigned to it. Rehearsals are now general, with principals, chorus and orchestra all going strong.

Inner Cabinet Of Vichy Hears Riom Court's Findings

VICHY, Oct. 4—(AP)—The Vichy inner cabinet met today to hear findings of the Riom court investigating "war guilt" charges against former Premier Daladier and other leaders of the old regime, against whom Marshal Petain has promised direct action by mid-October.

A bulletin issued after the meeting announced Petain had signed a new corporate "labor charter."

A decree was promulgated, meanwhile, authorizing members of the dormant French parliament to receive pensions proportionate to their length of service now that they no longer are being paid.

Women Work On Airplanes In War Plant

ARCTIC PILOT MANAGER

General Plant Manager H. W. "Harry" Hayter, veteran northern flyer and veteran of the First Great War, greeted the newspaper pair with a courtesy and understanding that is not soon forgotten and saw to it that the visitors missed nothing they thought might prove of interest. Earlier, Plant Superintendent John J. Bowen, former air engineer on the far northern sky trails had placed his official seal of approval on the visit of the newsmen.

The plant officials explained that all work done is in connection with the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan and the civilian-managed repair and assembly plant has all work finally checked by officials of the R.C.A.F. here. A close liaison is maintained at all times with Squadron Leader S. H. Matheson, of No. 16 technical detachment, who is the R.C.A.F. officer in charge of flying equipment here.

From a vantage point high up, close to the huge multi-paned glass roof, the newsmen looked down on a scene that could be described as "well-ordered confusion." There were scores of planes, ranging from the tiny Tiger Moth training biplanes to the two-motored Avro Anson bombers and the swift Fairey Battle bomber-fighter gunnery practice machines, covering the main floor.

TECHNICAL ARMY

The planes were in all the stages of assemblage and dismantlement a person could imagine. And swarming over them and around them were the hundreds of mechanics of both sexes, privates, non-coms and officers of the all-important technical army, whose skill and care will forge one of the biggest links in the chain of victory.

In the middle of the main floor a group would be lifting one of the huge motors into place on the front of a Fairey Battle. Over in a corner were a number of young women scraping off old dead scale from the metal fuselage of a bomber in proparation for a new coat of paint.

Near were two girls, busy putting together the unbelievably numerous parts of an elevator.

Then there was a mixed group of men and young women going through the final inspection of a huge 800 h.p. Wasp motor before it was placed in a plane. Moving from the main floor with its numerous planes, the visitors entered a huge stock room where thousands of parts are constantly being checked by both men and women.

OVERHAULING ENGINES

In a big room, marked "Engine room, no admittance," scores of mechanics of both sexes were busy overhauling the power plants from the machines that citizens hear throbbing above the city every day.

An upstairs room, that caused the reporter considerable mystification was one in which several men and women appeared to be playing with scores of toy airplanes.

Manager Hayter explained that was the "planning room," but would say no more on the subject.

Because it was something really new to Edmonton the reporter was chiefly interested in the women workers.

Most of them he talked with had just finished high school or business college. There were some who had worked in city department stores and there was the occasional ex-stenographer with grease-covered hands.

Marion Hook, who lives in the Archibald block, Jasper avenue, and Mrs. Ella Panter, of 10656 106 avenue were very busy on a tail elevator. Miss Hook is a former stenographer, but she thinks her new job is tops.

SIX ON A FAIREY

Six young women who laughed nervously at the prospect of facing the camera, paused briefly from the collective job of scraping the paint from a Fairey Battle. They were Frances Foster, of 11241 72 street; Willa Rehill, of 10168 100 street. Willa was just about hidden from sight in the cockpit but stood up to give her name to the reporter. Others in the group were Nixieola Kennedy, of 11924 69 street; Margaret Heldon, of 11433 92 street, Irene Bowden, 13041 115 street and Katherine Hanson, 11833 55 street.

In the fabric room, busy on the front portion of a plane were: Muriel Davis, of 10739 86 avenue and Doreen Grey, of 10252 77 street. They had as a companion worker, Frank Klampfer, of 9554 103 avenue.

YOUNG AND COMELY

Two of the youngest and loveliest in the plant were Rita Martin of 11044 93 street, and Marjorie Pike, of 10826 98 street. Rita is 17 and Marjorie just 19. The former just graduated from Sacred Heart Separate High school recently and the latter attended Alberta College before joining the Mackenzie staff. They are working in the stockroom, checking parts.

Wrestling with the big Wasp motor for a bomber were Louise Chishire, of 9529 110 avenue and Irene Olson, of the same address. Arnold Hendrickson, of 9942 102 street and Ken Anderson, 12918 121 street were working with the two girls on the motor.

All seem happy as larks on the big job they know they are doing in the biggest struggle in the world's history.

"We train most of our employees right here," Manager Hayter stated. "We are highly pleased with the work of the women at this plant. They are unbeatable at certain jobs," he added.

"We started here on April 18 with about 25 employees in all. Now there are hundreds and we are adding more plant and more workers all the time," the manager said.

The plant here does nearly all the servicing and repairs for Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

PILOTS TEST PLANES

"Don't forget to say something about our test pilots, who test every machine before it is turned over to the R.C.A.F.," Mr. Hayter urged.

This important task, demanding the highest in skill and daring of a pilot is performed by Archie McMullen, veteran northern flier and Capt. Maurice Burbidge, war veteran and winner of the McKee trophy, who was for a long time instructor at the Edmonton and Northern Alberta Aero Club, and Flying Officer Tex Mitchell of the R.C.A.F. Mitchell is from Texas, one of the many U.S. airmen now flying for the R.C.A.F. He is very popular with his fellow test pilots.

FO. K. M. Bain, R.C.A.F., is an engineer officer, who spends most of his time at the plant, inspecting the work done on the machines.

President W. R. Leigh Brintnell of MacKenzie Air Service Ltd. is properly proud of the work his big staff are performing for the Empire and civilization.

Man Is Remanded On Fraud Count

Convicted of several charges of false pretences, involving passing of worthless cheques, William McLellan was remanded until October 10 for sentence. He is scheduled to face trial on other counts at that time. These latter charges arise out of the actions of accused who is alleged to have collected money for making lawns for several citizens and failed to do the work. McLellan Friday pleaded guilty to stealing a bicycle. He will be sentenced on that count on October 10 also.

Man Succumbs To Wound By Shotgun

Accidentally shot in the abdomen, when a shotgun was being tested following an overhaul, Leo Pelletier, 30, of Riviere Qui Barre, died in the Misericordia hospital at 10:40 p.m. Friday.

Death took place 40 minutes after the injured man reached the hospital, where he was rushed in a Jack Hays ambulance from nine miles northwest of Morinville. The shooting took place there at about 7 p.m.

Officers from Edmonton R.C.M.P. headquarters were investigating the shooting Saturday morning. Officials here stated they had not been notified of the shooting until after the man had died in hospital here late Friday.

Ambulance operators, who brought the victim to the city, said they knew little of the circumstances but had been given to understand that the fatal shot had been fired by a relative, who was inspecting the gun with Pelletier. The latter is said to have received the fatal charge of shot from a distance of only 10 feet.

A post mortem examination was ordered by Chief Coroner Dr. E. A. Braithwaite. It was held Saturday morning at the Misericordia hospital.

Dr. Braithwaite stated there would be no inquest, as the shooting seems to have purely accidental.

Funeral will be held Monday at Riviere Qui Barre.

Fleet Youths Are Too Thirsty, Police Decide

Two thirsty chaps were a bit too impatient at 2:45 p.m. Friday and as a result police are looking for the pair, who stole a case of beer from a liquor control board truck at 121 street and 104 avenue.

Gordon Hauff, liquor board employee, telephoned police that he saw two young men take the case of beer from the rear of the truck and run with it toward Jasper avenue in a southeastern direction.

Hauff gave chase but was outfooted.

Interpreting War News

Moscow had been restored. That is calculated to prolong the Leningrad battle indefinitely, if confirmed. Reinforcements of men, arms and supplies for the Leningrad garrison could be brought up.

Red counter attacks on the Neva river sector are reported and it is possible that these onslaughts achieved the break in Nazi siege lines. That sector, running east and south of Leningrad to the shores of Lake Ladoga, is obviously the weakest link of the German siege lines. It is most difficult to supply and reinforce.

And, in view of Hitler's hint of gigantic new German attacks developing elsewhere, it appears that he lacked the means to reinforce the Leningrad siege ring adequately. It is evident that he was massing his main striking forces southward.

SHORT OF BREAK-THROUGH

The sudden blow at Kiev which trapped and took the city in a huge pincer movement two weeks ago proved that. It fell far short, however, of a German break-through into the Donets-Don basin via Kharkov. It is there, on the southern flank of the long battle line from the Kiev bulge to the sea of Azov and to the Crimean front south of Perekop, that the greatest Russian danger lies.

That basin is the route through which oil from Russia's Caspian fields reaches its destination in factories, tanks or planes. Hence it is the greatest military prize at which steel-tipped Nazi fingers are clutching in Russia. And Hitler frankly admitted what has been well known to every observer as his Russian crusade took its bloody way, that Russian morale and Russian preparedness for war on a grand scale have deeply surprised him.

The German schedule of victory is way off stride; the Fuehrer admits that even while still claiming that the battle in the east is going "as planned".

DOUBT IN GERMANY

He also tacitly admits, in the light of growing resistance to his sway in all Nazi conquered countries, that there must be developing doubt in Germany itself as to his ultimate victory. To meet it, Hitler travelled from the Russian front to make the Berlin address at a time when he could ill be spared as a vast new German offensive got under way.

Just what the scope of that drive will prove to be or where the brunt of it is falling does not yet appear. There is much to indicate, however, that the most immediate spearhead is east of the Dnieper river at Dniepropetrovsk crossing. A penetration of a dozen to 25 miles northeastward is claimed in Berlin.

There is some evidence now, however, that the northern jaw of the first Nazi pincer attempt to drive directly on Kharkov from the Kiev break-through has been either withdrawn or thrown back by the Russians. It is again at Konotop, 30 miles or more west of its greatest advance point at Gluskova.

If that is true, it seems possible that the Germans are digging in defensively all the way from the Leningrad fighting zone to the upper Desna line southwest of Bryansk or even to Poltava, facing the Russian Vorskla river line. Below that to the coasts of the Black Sea and the Sea of Azov, itself a huge front, is the probable scene of Hitler's "gigantic new development."

Every Dollar You Spend Means More War Materials for Britain

City Land Sales Continue Brisk

Although the building season is nearing an end, sales of city-owned property for home building continued and Friday two lots were sold in the Fairview district on which homes estimated to cost $2,000 each will be erected. Each lot was purchased for $175.

Other sale effected Friday was a property in King Edward Park which had been taken over by the city for taxes. This property was redeemed by the former title-holder by payment of $724.88 back taxes and penalties.

Also completed on Friday was the lease agreement between the city and the British American Oil Co., on the Grierson street service station located at 9625 Jasper avenue. It is the company's intention to make improvements to this property costing approximately $10,000.

Friday morning a building permit was issued to W. Rinas for the erection of a dwelling at 8009 112 avenue costing $2,500.

Financial Front Now Important Phase For Britain's Big Battle

Total war means total effort and that in turn means total effort on three main fronts, military, industrial and financial. Britain will be unable to continue her most gallant of all battles to a victorious finish unless the strongest possible pressure is maintained at all times on these three fronts.

Any slackening on any of the main fronts will be to Hitler like the weakest link in a chain. So far we are making splendid progress toward total effort on two of the fronts, the military and industrial front lines.

The third front line is not so strongly manned as yet and it is on this very important front, the financial front, that Edmonton citizens are being asked to rush up some reserve power next week.

SINEWS OF WAR

Britain must have the financial sinews of war to buy the material weapons that will bring victory. Her factories can and are still producing the goods in great quantities. Her ships still ply the oceans of the world despite "rattle snakes" under and pirate craft on the surface of the seven seas. But there must be purchasers for this output of factory, produced with so much blood and sweat.

Next week merchants of Edmonton, under the leadership of the Chamber of Commerce, are sponsoring the first Buy Something British campaign in the history of Western Canada.

Store windows will be crammed with displays of British-made goods. Every purchase of goods from Britain is a real nail in the coffin of Nazi Germany. Because, only with a normal trade can Britain secure the necessary funds with which to purchase from the vast arsenal of democracy the weapons that will crush the armies of the foe.

Edmonton is not going to let the Motherland down.

The Buy-Something-British campaign will continue from Monday to Saturday with every store in the city co-operating.

McCauley Group Show Aids Fund

In aid of the Queen's Canadian Fund for air raid victims, McCauley concert group staged its first show of the new season in the Memorial Hall Thursday evening. The concert was under the direction of J. J. Hodgkinson, former president of the Edmonton Federation of Community Leagues.

Taking the spotlight was a group of dogs, trained to perform tricks. The animals were all trained in Alberta and were introduced as "Smith's dogs." One of these was referred to as Winston Churchill, since it bore on its chest a perfect "V" for victory.

A quilt made and donated by Mrs. James Murdoch was won by Mrs. W. S. Campbell, 10129 96 street.

Other items on the program included songs by W. F. Wraight, Zella MacDonald, Ernest Mason, R. D. Shaw and Carrie Zurch; musical numbers by Minnie Foster, Margaret MacDonald, Walter Sorensen, Dick Pollard, Cleon Savage, Nellie Hodgson, Lydia Tsupornyk and Love's orchestra; dances and acrobatic numbers by Connie Davidson, Betty Riley Shaw, Norma Johnston, Ellen Love, Alethea Biggs, Cora Mare and a magic act by Fred Baker.

During the evening Alex MacDonald addressed the large gathering on the purpose and administration of the air raid fund.

Mayor Makes Appeal To City To "Buy Something British" In Week Starting October 6

To the People of Edmonton:

When huge convoys of merchant vessels laden with food and implements of war which regularly leave Canada's shores for Britain, RETURN FILLED WITH BRITISH MANUFACTURED PRODUCTS FOR CANADA, not only are the costs of transportation halved but both Britain and Canada are helped immeasurably by this interchange in the maintenance of the stability of their financial structures.

Because of the loss of huge continental markets now closed to her, Britain is also immensely aided in her war efforts and daily life by the maintenance of her industrial fabric so vital to her present power and strength and without which hope for future recovery would dim.

Every dollar spent by the public on BRITISH made goods goes to create a greater exchange which in turn enables Britain to buy more Canadian Products.

The brave fight of the British people to retain their overseas trade and maintain the splendid quality of the merchandise being produced, under conditions of great adversity, and the proud slogan: "Britain Delivers the Goods," is worthy of the support of every Canadian and I feel confident the response of the people of Edmonton to the appeal to "BUY SOMETHING BRITISH" during the week of October 6th to October 11, will be generous and wholehearted.

(Sgd.) JOHN W. FRY,
Mayor of Edmonton

Civil Servants Make Plans For Red Deer Meet

Meeting Thursday evening at the legislative buildings the executive of the Alberta Civil Service Association discussed plans for the organization's annual convention which will be held at Red Deer early in December.

Within the next few weeks, branches of the association in this city, Calgary and elsewhere, will meet to select delegates to attend the convention, which will discuss resolutions and other matters affecting the welfare of civil servants.

At its Thursday meeting, the executive also discussed representations which have been made to the provincial government in respect to the cost-of-living bonus, which is now reportedly before the cabinet for consideration.

President of the civil service association is William McGruther, while Alfred Farmilo is general secretary.

Trade Minister's Mission Success

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 4.—(CP)—Trade Minister James A. MacKinnon of Canada said Friday the trade understanding reached with Argentina Thursday will give "immediate and concrete results."

Leaving for Sao Paulo, en route to Rio De Janeiro, the head of Canada's trade mission to Latin America said that the understanding had as its main object, however, the laying of the groundwork for a long-range program of exchange for the two countries.

The results already achieved "far exceeded expectations," he said. He announced that the Buenos Aires government has promised him an Argenine mission will visit Canada at the earliest possible moment to continue trade talks and iron out all difficulties.

Opposition Head Issues Manifesto

HALIFAX, Oct. 4—(CP)—Opposition leader L. W. Fraser Friday night issued his manifesto for the Nova Scotia general election campaign that ends at the polls Oct. 28, declaring the Conservative Party "dedicates itself to a progressive spirit of Nova Scotianism" and will "take vigorous action now to prepare for the post-war period."

Viking Community Glee Club Will Be Formed By Citizens

VIKING.—Formation of a community-wide glee club is underway, and if enough members join up it is intended to make it a permanent organization. Chorus work, solos, duets, quartettes, and finally an operetta is contemplated.

George Ross has been promoted to manager of the Donalda lumber yard after serving his apprenticeship here.

The annual "blowing" of gas wells is underway here for Northwestern Utilities, the company that controls the field. The Continental Oil Co. that has holdings in the Kinsella field, formerly known as Hudson-Bay Marland, is represented by J. Thomas, of Billings, Mont.

Students from Viking registered at the Camrose Lutheran College are Leslie Peterson, Stella Hafso, Ardis Horton and Bob Thunell. Douglas Darrah is registered at the University of Alberta for his second year in medicine.

Supreme Court To Hear Tax Argument

OTTAWA, Oct. 4.—(CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada will hear arguments Nov. 17 on the Dominion government's reference on legality of the 10 per cent tax imposed by the last budget on premiums paid to British and foreign insurance companies operating in Canada without a federal license, it was learned Friday night. The fall term of the Supreme Court begins Tuesday.

The privy council at a meeting Sept. 23, on recommendation of Justice Minister Lapointe, advised that the court should be asked for a decision on whether the tax is "ultra vires of the parliament of Canada either in whole or in part, and if so in what particular or particulars or to what extent?"

The new 10-per-cent tax has been in abeyance because of a senate amendment that it should not take effect until after a reference to the Supreme Court. The tax is aimed at companies operating in the Dominion with provincial license only.

The various provinces have been informed by the Justice Department of the Nov. 17 hearing, and the reference has been made to the Supreme Court in the terms drawn up by the privy council, a justice department spokesman said.

Fire Is Boon To Humanity But Is Two-Edged Sword

Prevention Week Set By Government Order To Establish Control

Progress of the human race, since long before history was accurately recorded, has been intimately linked with fire. Fire and heat have permitted man to perform a whole myriad of tasks that make life easier and more comfortable, and fire and heat also have made it possible for man to inhabit with comfort regions of the earth where such habitation would be otherwise impossible.

But while fire has been responsible for much of the social advancement of mankind it has on the other hand also been in truth a "two-edged sword" or a "mixed blessing", as the saying goes.

Fire uncontrolled is one of the most terrible of the enemies of mankind. Even in peace time fire exacts a tremendous toll of life and property every year. And this lurid god of flame, is in wartime an enemy that eats at the internal welfare of the state with redoubled consequences.

TO REDUCE LOSSES

The government of Canada has set aside next week, from October 5 to October 11, inclusive, as Fire Prevention Week in all parts of the country. The city of Edmonton, the city fire department and the office of the provincial fire commissioner have joined wholeheartedly in the campaign of education, so that fire losses may be cut to the absolute minimum in this grave war period in particular.

By Royal Proclamation, His Excellency the Governor General of Canada has set aside the period designated as Fire Prevention Week.

His Excellency points out at the outset of the proclamation how essential it is in this critical time to conserve all of our natural resources for an all-out war effort. "Every fire is a hindrance to that effort," the proclamation states.

The proclamation is contained in the August 30 issue of The Canada Gazette.

Fire Chief James Macgregor, who heads Edmonton's fire fighting forces is stressing the theme of the Royal Proclamation.

"Defend against fire for national defence," will be the theme of this year's Fire Prevention Week, Fire Chief James Macgregor announced Saturday. The City of Edmonton will observe the occasion along with the rest of Canada and the United States beginning tomorrow and continuing until October 11.

Fire safety takes on added importance at this time, for not only is it necessary to eliminate the losses and interruptions of production caused by fire, but it is a vital part of the civilian defence program of the Office of Civilian Defence, according to the Chief.

"We are becoming a nation armed against fire," he declared, "and here we must do our part. We must protect our homes, our industry, and all of our people from fire—no matter if it occurs from ordinary causes, from sabotage, or as the result of air invasion. Each of us must become fire wardens to help safeguard the destiny of our country."

Fire Marshal Jack Booth has joined Chief Macgregor in the campaign to make Edmontonians fire conscious. For this reason homeowners are being urged to be constantly on the alert against the fire hazard. Most fires are preventible, states the fire marshal.

Production Higher

TORONTO, Oct. 4—(CP)—Negus Mines Limited, Yellowknife, N.W.T., Friday reported August production of $66,740 from 1,894 tons of ore, compared with $61,985 from 1,810 tons in July.

Essay, Poster Contests For Fire Defence

Every school child in the city, in grades seven, eight and nine has an opportunity to demonstrate his or her ability at essay writing and art and at the same time turn this ability into a substantial amount of spending money in the essay and poster competition, sponsored by the Edmonton Junior Chamber of Commerce and City Fire Department during Fire Prevention Week, October 5 to 11.

In addition, the young competitors will be rendering a valuable service to Canada and the Empire by drawing public attention to the vital necessity of preventing loss from preventible fires during the present great struggle for freedom now raging throughout the world.

The competition is in two separate sections, with identical prize lists ofw $10 first, $5 second and $3 third awards.

THEME OF ESSAY

The theme in the essay contest is: "How fire prevention helps to win the war." Essays must not exceed 300 words in length. Material may be obtained from any source. The essays will be judged on originality, practical suggestions, and composition.

The poster section will have as the subject: "Fire prevention," and the work must be done on good quality paper 18 inches by 12 inches. All material used in the poster section must be original.

Fire Department Heads

FIRE CHIEF MacGREGOR

FIRE MARSHAL BOOTH

Fire Chief James Macgregor and Fire Marshal Jack Booth, above, are conducting a systematic check-up on fire hazards in connection with Fire Prevention Week and are urging all citizens to eliminate any litter which might start a fire in or around their homes.

The contest closes at midnight of October 11, 1941.

Entries must be delivered to any of the four city firehalls.

LOCATION OF STATIONS

These are located as follows: No. 2 hall on 104 street, just south of Jasper avenue; No. 5 hall, on 101 street, just north of 111 avenue; No. 6 hall, on the south side on 83 avenue between 103 and 104 streets; No. 8 hall on 126 street between 109 and 110 avenues.

Names, addresses, schools, grades and ages of contestants must be clearly marked on all entries.

The slogan for the campaign is "Save Life and Property".

While the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the city fire department have been chiefly instrumental in planning the essay and poster contest, valuable support has come from the office of the provincial fire commissioner and the gas company.

Cash for the prizes was donated by these sources.

By Bert Nightingale Jr.

Editor Bulletin Youth Page

City newspapers this week told of a brief visit in Edmonton of a nine-year-old youngster from England, on his way to stay for the duration of the war, with an uncle in Vancouver. The youngster, Anthony Stapley, is a British "guest child," the son of a naval officer who was killed on active service and a mother who is working heart and soul for victory in a terrific struggle against all that is rotten and unclean.

I was assigned to meet the train and get a story from the kid, and since the train was due to arrive in Edmonton at 6:30 a.m., I went to bed the previous night with a decidedly glum outlook as far as the next day was concerned. My outlook was changed considerably within five minutes of the train's arrival and my meeting with the youngster in question.

They Know What's What

If all our so-called English cousins are like young Stapley, then the sooner this war is won and their slaughter stopped, the better it will be for all of humanity.

The train conductor told me "Anthony is a great kid." He wasn't kidding, pal! Anthony is a great kid, and no fooling! He's got what it takes. He's got courage and plenty of it; he's got that spirit of "hang on," and he's already got a very powerful notion of what's wrong and what's right. He's the sort that anyone would be proud to have for a kid brother. And because the British Empire is what it is today, he must be only typical of the younger generation "over there."

Personally, I've always had a more or less "soft spot" for these youngsters from overseas. I've got a lot of pleasant memories of years spent in a school in Bonnie Scotland, where I received my early education. These kids who have been taken under Canada's wing for the war period, must also have their memories, and I hope, as just about everyone else does, that when the time comes for these boys and girls to return to their convalescing British Isles, that their outlook on Canada will be pleasant enough to bring them back, if not for life, at least for many a fond visit.

Here's Some "Thank You's"

Thanks and a vocal bouquet to young Mr. Stapley for pointing out just what an all-out war effort means to youngsters in the thick of it—thanks too, to the very young telegraph messenger who I saw this week take time out to chat for a few minutes with an elderly person who I happen to know can use plenty of such sunshine—to a member of Canada's armed forces, now on leave, who wasn't in too great a hurry to answer the questions of a gaping youngster whose loving looks at the blue uniform could mean only love in its deepest sense.

Boys' Basketball Has Two Workouts

McDougall Commercial—Booster's junior boys' basketball team composed mainly of students and ex-students held two workouts under the watchful eye of Coach Gordon Ferguson this week. Any boys in the school interested in playing are welcome to attend. Practices are held at 8 p.m. Tuesday and Friday at the school gym.

There will be no inter-school football this fall due to late school opening.

The junior and senior girls' basketball team coached by C. Hollingsworth, will defend the championships they now hold, while the junior and senior boys will endeavor to regain championships they lost to Victoria last year.—L.O.

School Machinery On Oiled Wheels

Strathcona High School — The second week of school finds the machinery of Scona running on oiled wheels. Leadership of the teaching staff has guided students through another opening. Rough places have been made smooth and the real work of the year has commenced.

Notices have appeared requesting rugby players to turn out for practices. Many rooms have elected their room "reps" and a final count on this score will be released next week.

The dramatic society is away to a good start and next week will see other organizations following suit.

After the school election has taken place, many extra-curricular activities will commence. Lots of fresh faces are to be seen in the halls of Scona these days and many familiar faces are missing—J. G.

"Bunker Hill Boys" Patriotic In War As Boston Ancestors

BOSTON.—When and if the boys of Boston are called to the colors, they'll have a running start on most of the nation's rookies. Lads of 14 and thereabouts are joining with older brothers in defence training.

From historic Bunker Hill, which once echoed to the sound of musket shots, now comes the staccato tap of military-type codes and the clatter of wireless signals.

There's nothing amateurish in the way these knee-pants boys are going about their jobs in the Bunker Hill club, which faces the rusty cannons "guarding" the hilltops, and its two brother clubs in South Boston and Roxbury.

There are signal corps groups patterned after the U.S. Army Signal Corps. There's a communication division for navy training. Four short-wave radio stations are in full operation. Classrooms teach fundamentals of electricity, voice and code transmission. Typewriting classes are teaching the touch system as an aid to the future signal corps operators.

Cooking classes have been turned into commissary departments. A retired captain of Marines supervises instruction on the rifle range. Even a weather bureau is to be set up in one of the clubs where boys can get practical experience in meteorology.

He says, "Every boy from fourteen years up is going to be called upon to do something in this national emergency. By experience in the club room these boys can learn what sort of job they're best fitted to do. Army and navy officials are interested in our work—can help us to pick out the most promising boys for future service."

Stories In Stamps

CANADA NAMES MOUNTAIN AFTER HEROIC WAR NURSE

Canada is a vast nation, rich in resources. It has a population of 11,000,000.

The country has a varied topography — mountains, foothills, barrens, prairies and sloping plains. Among the scenic beauties are the Canadian Rockies, one of the great tourist attractions.

Mount Edith Cavell, which is pictured in the 1930 stamp above, lies in this group. It is named after the famous English nurse, who carried on an underground movement in Belgium and was shot by the Germans, Oct. 12, 1915.

She was convicted of aiding some 250 British, French and Belgian soldiers, caught behind the German lines, to escape into neutral Holland. Presumably they returned to belligerent nations and re-entered military service.

The Germans later realized that in shooting a woman they had committed an incalculable blunder. Indignation flared throughout the world.

The Edmonton Boys' Work Board held its first meeting of the season Monday at the Y.M.C.A. The meeting officially opened with prayers by Rev. J. A. Perrie.

As Curfew Tolls The Knell Of Parting Day

The sun glares its defiance of night from the horizon and silhouettes the weary farmer trudging home, weighted down by a heavy sack, followed by two cows going to the barn. So effectively does the picture, snapped by A. W. Carpenter of Durham, N. C., tell its story that it was awarded first prize in an amateur photographic contest conducted by the State of North Carolina.

Y.M.C.A. Classes Off To Fine Start

Following the annual stampede for membership, Edmonton's Y.M.C.A. is off on its fall and winter term. It is still possible for any interested youth or businessman to get in on an unusually interesting program of health, fun, and good-fellowship.

Up till now the spotlight has been focussed on physical development and health education. Physical Director James McConnell and Boys' Work Secretary Armour Bull have combined a program of exercises with popular men's sports and team games.

This season's floor-leaders, Roger Harris and Sinclair Coghill, have introduced an exciting game that's taking the building by storm. Called "American Ball," it combines plenty of action with beneficial practice in man exercise. Bi-weekly boxing classes under Jack Berry are being conducted on Tuesdays and Fridays at 6:30 p.m. Seven qualified junior and master life-saving instructors, Ken Deane, Jim Beaudoin, Vernon Smith, Roy McDermid, Norman Brown, Roger Harris and Bill Rea, are in charge of instruction at the "Y" pool.

Shirley Temple Is No Longer

The Kid Is Now A Glamor Girl

"Marvel Mite" In Latest Films

By PAUL HARRISON

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—It was a little startling to see Shirley Temple in a full-length party dress and looking trim-figured as a deb, rush across a room and into the arms of Herbert Marshall. They exchanged a couple of enthusiastic kisses.

All this was strictly father-and-daughter business, yet the procedure also seemed a little disconcerting to the elder player. Ordinarily a hard man to fluster, Marshall blew up in his lines three times.

Miss Temple, glowing with the excitement of being back in the old world of lights and dramatic tension, didn't make any mistakes.

The story of "Kathleen" is a good one for the reintroduction to the screen of the youngster whose career was almost wrecked by a lot of saccharin nonsense and cloying precocity. Miss Temple has been out of movies about 14 months, and the fans will want to see her in a vehicle that really puts her through her paces. This one does. Fun and despair, sweetness and deviltry, singing and dancing are in it.

One of the most interesting prospects is that audiences finally will get a good look at the star. During the last year or so her growth was minimized by costuming, by casting her with extra-tall adults, and by means of various tricks in camera angles. These were responsible for the persistence of the myth that Shirley Temple was a midget.

Actually, of course, she was growing all the time. In the past 14 months she has added only about an inch, but fans who have been fooled by previous pictures will exclaim that she has shot up almost half a foot.

The Wonder Tot and Marvel Mite are gone. So is the babyish chubbiness. At 12, Shirley Temple stands an easy 4 feet, 11 inches and weighs, as of this writing, 101½ pounds.

Another thing: Her hair now is its own natural color—a dark brown, and getting darker. Her mother's hair is practically black, and she told me that it was quite blonde when she was a child. Shirley wears hers in a shoulder-length, loose bob.

Gertrude and George Temple said they're very pleased with the script of "Kathleen", and also with the rest of the cast. Essentially the yarn is simple: Shirley is the motherless daughter of a rich and busy man. Her governess is a mean old biddy and the youngster matches her small persecutions with mischief. Lonely and distressed by her father's neglect, Shirley develops a sort of split personality, spends a lot of time in day-dreaming about happier situations.

CHANCE TO DANCE

Her imaginings are enacted in the picture. In one of these fanciful flights she is a musical comedy star, and that provides the chance to show her singing and dancing in imitations of real celebrities.

Most interesting to me is the face of today's Shirley Temple. She still has those two offset dimples near the corners of her mouth, but instead of looking babyish they now add to a mobility of expression and charming impishness. The kid is downright beautiful, and even from this distance I can hear the thumping of a new generation of male hearts.

Mystery Presents Itself As Dog Seeks Aid For Hurt Paw

By PETER BOGGS

Mrs. Caroline Barnes, of Chicago, Ill., keeps a first-aid box on a lower shelf in the kitchen. Whenever she or any of her three children get hurt, the box is promptly brought out and minor cuts or bruises treated.

Recently, Mrs. Barnes was sitting in her living room when Patches, the family dog, appeared carrying the first-aid box by the handle in his mouth. He trotted over to his mistress and deposited it on the floor and held up one of his front paws. Mrs. Barnes noticed the paw had a deep cut in it.

Somehow, sometime, the animal had associated in his mind the fact that the small tin box marked with a red cross was used in such emergencies. How or why Patches acted as he did I can't explain, but I can vouch for the authenticity of the above facts.

GRASS EATING

Don't worry if your dog eats grass. It's true that it may be a sign of some minor trouble, but in a majority of instances the dog does it purely out of instinct as a conditioner.

Eating grass does one of two things; it either causes them to vomit, or the grass is digested into the intestinal tract and helps to remove excess waste and infections.

For the last year, I have attempted to discover what type of grass a dog preferred. I have planted different types in patches accessible to my dogs. Long, narrow blades of tender Bermuda grass seemed to rank first. However, it is interesting to note how some dogs will nose about until they find just the type that they desire. Often this particular grass is completely passed up by another dog also eating grass at the time. Grass is beneficial to your dog, so do not try to keep him from eating it if he so desires.

DOG'S INTELLIGENCE

Two Chicago scientists made intelligence tests of dogs. They used a device called a "psychogalvinometer." After the tests were over, they said the average dog had as much sense as a 12-year-old child.

Personally, I think the machine was in error. Sometimes I think dogs show more common sense than most human beings of any age. A dog won't eat when he is not hungry and he will relax and rest when he has nothing to do. And above all, he profits by his experiences—he doesn't very often do something a second time that got him into serious trouble the first time he did it.

FEED INDIVIDUALLY

If you are feeding a litter of young puppies, I believe it wiser to feed the dogs from individual dishes rather than all together out of one large pan.

Each puppy has a distinct individuality, and the bullies of the litter will often get most of the feed if only one pan is used. Feeding in this manner also has a tendency to further the fighting instincts of some puppies. It is practical to afford all dogs their own individual eating dishes.

DOG HAS GLASS EYE

Billy, a dog owned by Dr. Toxey Hall, a hospital superintendent in Jackson, Miss., has a glass eye. Billy was struck by an automobile that hopelessly blinded his right eye. Dr. Hall, after putting the dog under an anesthetic, removed the injured eyeball, and in its place substituted a small black marble. The dog quickly recovered, but the marble didn't look just right. A regular glass eye was secured and fitted in place of the marble. Today, Billy looks almost natural and as far as I know, is the only dog in this country running about with one glass eye.

HUNTING DOGS

If your bird dog has been confined to his kennel all summer with little chance for exercise, don't expect him to run at top speed all day the opening day of the season—that is, unless you take it upon yourself to start now to prepare him.

Many times I have heard a gunner complaining that his dog wouldn't keep hunting after the first two or three hours. It wasn't the dog's fault. The owner was too short-sighted or too lazy to bother about putting his dog in condition before the season started.

THE QUESTION BOX

Question: I understand heart worm is very prevalent in the South. Are these worms found only in the heart of dogs?—C. R. A.

Answer: Not necessarily, for the parasites are often found in arteries and veins of dogs.

Question: What dog magazine if any would you recommend for the average dog owner?—C. L. B.

Answer: "Dog World," published by the Judy Publishing Company, Chicago, is to my mind the best of them all.

ASEPTIC OINTMENT

President's Report Is Highlight Alberta Home Economics Meet

Highlights of the morning session of the annual convention of the Alberta Home Economics' Association held in the Macdonald hotel on Saturday were the president's report given by Miss Ada Lent; an address by Mrs. Richard Procter, chairman of women's war work for the Red Cross for Northern Alberta, and an address on "The Role of B-Vitamins" given by Miss Marion Crosby, A.M.

Theme of the convention was "Home Economics Place in the War Effort", and all business was devoted to the relating of home economics' work with the national war effort.

Miss Ada Lent of Edmonton, president, was in the chair and welcomed the delegates.

In her report Miss Lent said: "This year Alberta Home Economists have contributed time, talent and energy to the war effort in a variety of ways. Members have been active in education for nutrition through foods and nutrition classes to army cooks, commissariat courses to the Women's Auxiliary Service Corps, and nutrition classes to Red Cross groups. In addition to these nutrition classes, classes in clothing construction and buymanship were conducted for soldiers' wives.

"A successful home is the foundation of a strong, democratic country and upon the home economist falls a great part of the responsibility for educating present and future housewives in those things that go to make a successful home—wise planning and spending of money, time and effort.

EDUCATION

"Home economists, because of their special training, are in a strategic position to give leadership in problems related to the home and to community welfare.

"Every home economist knows that adequate nutrition is essential to health and morale, and that those factors are necessary in our defense effort. Under-nourished people make poor workers.

"Because of these facts, the promotion of sound nutrition takes on added importance, and effects every individual in this country. It becomes of foremost concern on the home front as well as in the active services.

"From Miss Laura Pepper, chief of the Consumer-Service, marketing section of the department of Agriculture at Ottawa, has just come a very simply prepared booklet entitled 'Food for Defense'. In a memo enclosed with the copy of the booklet sent to me, Miss Pepper says that there is a tremendous demand for it from homemakers who are looking for advice on what they should be using during the war period. This booklet you have probably seen in the 'What's New in Home Economics' display. Other similar instances could be cited to show the enormous demand and need for this type of material.

"All of this suggests a need to be met right here at home through material prepared by our own association, adapted to local needs and distributed through local groups. Thus we would be able to reach large numbers of people with helpful material which could be put to immediate use.

"Home economics education in our Alberta schools is growing. There are now approximately 97 teachers in 100 centres. It is encouraging to note that from the C.H.E.A convention went resolutions to Alberta and all other provinces where properly qualified supervisors are not employed, urging the importance of such a step.

"Our News Bulletin this year was, for the first time, a printed publication, for the capable editing of which we owe much appreciation to Miss Edweena McCaffary."

A luncheon, tea and following an evening banquet were features of the day's program.

GREETS NEWCOMERS

MRS. LOWELL H. COBBLEDICK

A pleasant smile and a gracious "How-do-you-do. Welcome to Edmonton!" affords Mrs. Lowell H. Cobbledick, above, an entry into the homes of newcomers to Edmonton, for in her daily task of greeting new Edmontonians, Mrs. Cobbledick is the bearer of a lovely gift of "extras" from Edmonton business people. Through the gift and welcome accorded them, strangers are made to feel at home in Edmonton during their very first days in the city.

Dramatic Club Of University Holds Meeting

Would-be thespians, and students at the University of Alberta interested in the many other branches of dramatic art besides acting, gathered in the Arts building on Friday evening for the first formal meeting of the dramatic Club. The meeting was the organization meeting for the year and plans for the society's productions were discussed.

During the meeting the executive members of the society were introduced, Mr. E. Maldwyn Jones, advisor; Mr. Murray Kendrick, president; Miss Norma Coburn, vice-president; Miss Secord Jackson, secretary; and Mr. Robert Black, treasurer.

Later the dramatic-minded students gathered in St. Joseph's tuck shop for refreshments.

Among the guests that attended the get-together party and meeting were the Misses Suzanne Jegard, Marguerite Jones, Kathleen Lind, Doris Halberg, Gerdine Rowan, Norma Coburn, Marjorie Lough, Audrey MacPherson, Joan MacLeod, Margaret Smith, Paulette Jegard.

The Misses Isabel MacGregor, Peggy Harkins, Mary Watson, Stella Catley, Margaret MacLeod, Hazel Moore, Judith Demetrovits, Arlene Pinch, Mary McLeod, Marguerite Hayes, Irene Kroening, Francis Norris, Marilyn Diamond.

The Misses Audrey Ladier, Veronica Davies, Geraldine Cope, Margaret Ferguson, Phyllis Wolochow, Doris Williams, Evelyn Johnston, Secord Jackson.

Messrs. James Woods, Laurie Fisher, George Agnew, Jach Sheinen, George Hardy, Orville Stratte, Donald Wilson, John Aitken, T. MacDonald, Donald Thornton, Rene Bolleau, John Dubeta, Fredrick Simpson, Murray Kendrick, Ralph Weir and Corwin Pine.

Her Task Is To Welcome Strangers

Extending hospitality and the gracious hand of welcome to newcomers in the city is the pleasant task of Mrs. L. H. Cobbledick, whose friendly service in her Greeting Car has won for her appreciative "thanks" from hundreds of new families in Edmonton.

A complete home service to the newcomer is offered by Mrs. Cobbledick who averages five calls a day to both newcomers and brides in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Newcomer have just moved in from another province to the house on the corner. They know not a soul in Edmonton, and are feeling a little "lost". Here Mrs. Cobbledick steps into the picture, arriving at the door in her Greeting Car. She welcomes Mrs. Newcomer, answers all her questions regarding the city, position of churches, schools, names the different clubs and gives her the name of a reliable doctor, lawyer, dentist, electrician, plumber, kindergarten teacher, music teacher, handy man to put up storm windows or hang pictures, housemaid or girl to mind children. Mrs. Cobbledick has the names of 22 girls in different parts of the city to whom she can assign the latter task.

She then presents the grateful Mrs. Newcomer with a basket containing gifts to the value of $14 from the leading retail merchants throughout the city. Keeping up a friendly conversation all the while, she learns of hobbies and other interests of the new family. Mrs. Newcomer's young daughter is interested in handicrafts, so Mrs. Cobbledick gives her the name of Mrs. H. W. Hewitson, president of the Edmonton branch of the Handicrafts Guild.

SWIMMING LESSONS

Being a member of the Y.W.C.A. and on the board for the swimming pool, she presents the new family with a personal invitation for a guest swimming lesson in the "Y" pool. Also a member of the I.O.D.E., Mrs. Cobbledick is able to help Mrs. Newcomer in club life. Last week, a family arrived in the city, with a son serving in the navy. Through her I.O.D.E. influence, Mrs. Cobbledick had a navy sweater sent to the lad immediately.

In the past six months, Mrs. Cobbledick figures that she has called on 400 families. Nor does her work end after she has made her first call. She leaves her telephone number and the invitation to the family to call for friendly counsel at any time. Three months after the family have been in the city, and are thoroughly settled, she calls bringing a bouquet of roses from a leading florist . . . a further token of goodwill and friendship.

Although it occupies almost all her time, Mrs. Cobbledick finds her work most interesting and fun. She enjoys her task of goodwill ambassador and her greatest award is in seeing the greatful appreciation on the faces of those on whom she has called.

"Forsaking All Others"

By Nellie McClung

Copyright Reserved

EVERY one has a story, and so it follows that almost everyone could, if they wished, write one story. It might not carry the average reader past the opening paragraph, for average readers are flighty people at best. I have just finished reading a story which is a model for all those who desire to throw a net of words around the drama of life. I do not believe there is a wasted word in these 86 pages, which constitute the story of two women and one man in the well-worn triangle; well-worn but never worn out.

Nellie McClung

It is a story of a man and woman who lived a happy normal life in a little village, working hard and happily. Then prosperity hit them and they moved to the city, where they were assailed by more prosperity, and as a result of all these coupons and shares, James Wayne retired in his early forties and became a collector of jade and developed an eye for pretty women; and Ruth, his wife, quiet but observant, sat in her garden and waited for him to come home. Of course the story does not begin like this, for it is not art to start at the beginning of a story. The skilled technician begins as near as possible to the climax, and so this story begins the night that Wayne met Lee at dinner at a friend's house. Ruth was at the dinner too. Ruth was asked to the dinner only because Wayne would not go anywhere without her; Ruth was socially under the ban because she didn't care what she wore. In all other respects she seems to have been an estimable person, but she certainly did not know how to dress. But the other woman, Lee, 10 years younger than Ruth, knew exactly how to prepare and had been told by her hostess about this ill-assorted couple, the man strong and handsome; the woman aging and dowdy. So she hung dripping diamond earrings in her ears and put on her cloak of furry white.

At the table as she sat beside Wayne meeting him for the first time, she looked at him with magic in her eyes and laid her hand on his arm, with a pretty childlike grace, while across the table poor little mousy Ruth knew at a glance she was in for trouble again. This is the opening scene, and from there the reader is carried breathlessly from page to page.

SURPRISE ENDING

I expected to read that Ruth fought the battle with the enemy's tools, got her face lifted, eyebrows plucked and a complete new outfit of clothes. But the story has no such obvious plot. The book has a surprise ending which no reviewer must give away.

The book is called "Forsaking All Others" and the writer is Alice Duer Miller, whose "White Cliffs" wrung our hearts with its beauty. Mrs. Miller has written these two stories in verse, both clever and winsome, and becomes therefore the modern successor to Owen Meredith (Lord Lytton), whose novel 'Lucile' was in the same form and is still read with keen delight, though it was written in 1860.

We have been discussing the plot of Mrs. Miller's book and wondering if any man really ceases to love his wife because of her lack of taste in dress. I am disposed to think that much of this emphasis on women's appearance has a commercial basis only. Women, who are the greatest readers of advertisements, are told that certain soaps will keep their hands romantic and make their husbands more devoted. Magazines and radio programs recommend perfumes, powders, hairdressings, out of all proportion to their real value. I have seen marriages go wrong, but I do not remember ever seeing a home wrecked on the rock of the wife's careless dressing. I have seen women's extravagances and foolish buying do a neat job of home-destroying, just as the husband's drinking can do it.

When an American judge was in this city a few months ago, he was asked by a reporter what was the chief cause of domestic unhappiness, and his reply was that drinking stood at the top of the list. He gave three causes which lead to the disruption of homes, but not one mention of careless dressing.

SOMETHING MORE ENDURING

I believe that marriage is built on something more enduring than the tilt of a hat, or the curve of a cheek. Age comes as naturally as the sunlight of morning fades into the shadows of the evening, but beauty does not die because the sunlight pales. Marriage is built on companionship, understanding, and the sharing of joys and sorrows.

"Drive with a loose rein" is good advice to husbands or wives. For criticism, recriminations and coercion kill love, which is a tender plant to be carefully nurtured. Idleness is the severest test of marriage, for idleness is an abnormal condition. No one was ever intended to be a confirmed idler. The Waynes, in Mrs. Miller's story would probably have remained a devoted pair if they had gone on living in the little village where Ruth did her own work and Wayne mowed the lawn and washed his own car, and a trip to the State Fair was the high spot of the summer. But money set them free from earthly cares and exposed them to a new danger. Work is a track, on which the wheels of life are safely set.

What qualities are essential for happiness in marriage? For the wife, I would say cheerfulness and loyalty. No man wants to come home to a house of trouble, no matter how clean the verandah floor and the front steps are. Even a good meal can be spoiled by a sour face behind the teapot.

For the qualifications of a good husband, I would set dependability at the top of the list. Anyone who reads this sentence will know that the writer has left the daisied fields of youth behind. What young person would ever think of anything as drab as paying the taxes, or seeing that the winter supply of fuel is in the basement, as the primary requirement of a happy marriage? The foundation of a house does not show, but on it depends the beauty and comfort of the whole structure.

SOME EXCEPTIONS

I have seen notable exceptions to this rule. I had a friend who married a handsome fellow, who sang, wrote plays and poetry, had black eyebrows neat as minnows, and eyes of blue fire. He is still handsome, and why shouldn't he be? She has a good position and pays the bills. He takes no thought for tomorrow, is irritable and temperamental. Once he blackened her eyes when he was in a temper, but he wrote a beautiful poem to her the next day, full of contrition, and when he got paid for a story, he brought home a dozen red roses. The light and water were in arrears, but he bought roses, and strangely enough that family goes merrily on its way.

I got my first glimmering of the way the books are balanced in marriage when I was about 15 years old, and I happened to be present at a family quarrel in the neighborhood. My sympathies were all with the wife, and I wondered how she ever married a man who would use such violent language. With the boldness of youth I said something to this effect when the storm was over and the offender had gone out, slamming the door behind him. "Frank has a bad temper," she said, "but that's the worst anyone can say about him. I knew about his temper before I married him, but there isn't a finer man in the country. Frank was certainly good to my mother when she was bed-ridden here three years before she died, and he paid all the bills without a murmur. He knew that my mother did not want me to marry him too, but he was too big a man to ever hold that against her. He never went out of the house without calling up good-bye to her, and that's something I'll never forget. I often wish he didn't shout so much, but he doesn't know he's doing it. Anyway, he's my choice and I'm satisfied. I would rather quarrel with him than agree with any other man."

There is no balance to weigh these goods or ills, and so no sure guide to matrimony has ever been written, but Mrs. Miller's book leaves the reader with a heightened sense of its abiding power. I recommend it for a wedding present.

Minute Make-Ups

The Minute Men are famous in history. Make yourself famous for minute make-ups. Get yourself a silk or leather envelope about 4 by 6 inches. Put in it tiny boxes of eyeshadow, rouge, powder, two or three neatly folded tissues an eyebrush, an eye pencil loose powder compact, a little comb and lipstick. Keep one of these minute make-up kits in each bag and check it often to see that all is in place. You will always be able to do a quick retouching—and look lovely always!

V

COSTUME JEWELRY TIP

A good piece of costume jewelry often adds the perfect finishing touch to the costume—but not if it is soiled or tarnished. Keep the pieces in a covered box (if you do not have a jewel case, an inexpensive sectional box from the dime store will do excellently), and put a little bag of gum camphor in the box to prevent discoloration from tarnish. And do use the same care in cleaning the pieces as you would in cleaning more precious jewels.

Dr. and Mrs. Norman Allin and children intend leaving on Thursday for the east. Later in the month Dr. Allin will proceed to Philadelphia to attend the conference of the American College of Surgeons. In the meantime, Mrs. Allin and children will visit in Bowmanville, Ontario. Dr. Allin expects to be absent about a month.

Your Figure Madame!

The esprit de corps among our calorie dodgers is something to marvel at. They do no more than wind up their personal weight reduction programs successfully than they send along helpful hints for anyone else who is having a struggle.

A Maine reducer warns against announcing your intentions to reduce, especially to your family. If they have a sense of humor they bedevil you at table by urging you to "just take a little" of anything you are not supposed to have. She says the only way she managed to take off her surplus—20 pounds—was to go quietly about her diet. Now she thinks it is more fun to surprise the family with the results than to apprise them of your intentions.

A Michigan lady wants me to tell you that it is easier to get used to drinking coffee black when you cut down to half a cup. In a week—this is her promise—you will be so used to the more potent beverage that you will like it better.

From a Missourian comes the suggestion that the best way to last on a diet is not to get too hungry. It seems to be her slogan that a calorie in time saves nine. The next time you begin to feel enervated, along about 3:45 p.m. try averting that all-gone feeling by having a cup of hot tea with sugar, fruit juice, a banana, or buttermilk. This snack adds a few calories but it will pick you up, and it may keep you from cheating at dinner. The hungrier you get, the easier it is to overeat.

Another Michigan reducer is dead set against going to bed hungry. She says there's nothing like a glass of hot milk before going to bed to make you sleep—and to keep you from getting up rummaging in the ice-box. She has something there. Of course, it's a good idea also not to stay up so late that you get hungry.

An Illinois weight loser, who confesses that sweets have always been her undoing, has found that a little peppermint helps. She says a couple of after-dinner mints put a nice period to the meal and save a reducer from much worse things, such as pie. She refers to the small, plain mints. Not the chocolate-covered, saucer-sized variety.

From a Hollywood actress comes this tip: Eat your salad, without dressing, as the first course. The film folk are convinced the best way to deal with an appetite is to dull it, and the first course salad without dressing is an excellent means to this end.

Now, what are your ideas for slimming? If you are slim, you must have had a few that worked for you. Send them along. They may help to make the going easier for others.

YOUR DIETITIAN,
Ida Jean Kain.

LILIES ARE NOT ALL FLOWERS
10-4

If you think every lily is a flower you may be surprised to know that scientists class onions and asparagus as members of the lily family. It only goes to show what a vast difference may exist within any one family of plants. Just keep this in mind next time one of your friends say you are as lovely as a lily. Ask which kind of lily is meant.

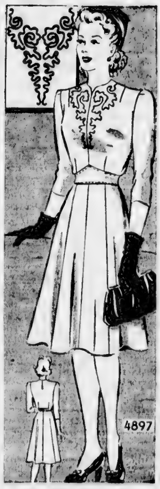
Bulletin Patterns



Young Embroidered Frock

It must be simple, it must be distinctive—your new afternoon frock! Anne Adams designs it—Pattern 4897—with very simple lines and unusual soutache braid embroidery. The transfer motif is used at either side of the bodice seam, and braid is easily sewed down to follow its outline. There are complete directions and pattern for the transfer motif with the Sewing Instructor. If you like, omit the braid motifs and turn the high neckline into a front opening which folds back in little revers. The set-in waist band and the twin panels in the front of the skirt give you that slender, lithe look. The three-quarter sleeves are very chic but you may make them short or long instead.

Pattern 4897 is available in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3¼ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send 20 cents in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly Size, Name, Address and Style Number.

Send your order to The Edmonton Bulletin, Pattern Department, 60 Front Street West, Toronto, Ontario.

Please allow a week or 10 days for delivery.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Miss Dix: How can a boy tell whether a girl loves him or not?
ARTHUR.

Answer—Well, you can't always tell. There are times when all signs fail and there is no man so clever, so discerning, so sophisticated that a woman cannot fool him if she sets her mind to doing it. Still there are various straws which show which way the winds of a girl's affection blow and, if you want to know whether one is really in love with you or not, observe these points.

Dorothy Dix

(1) Is she willing to sit at home of an evening with you or not? If she comes down with her hat on to receive you, or if she always wants to step out somewhere, you have not touched her heart. So long as a girl wants to go in crowds there is nothing doing with her in the love line. Lady Cupid is the world's greatest monopolist.

(2) Observe how a girl treats your pocketbook. If she gets everything out of you that she can, if she has three birthdays a year and lets you know beforehand that she is dying for a wrist watch; if she suggests orchids when flowers are mentioned; if she picks out the most expensive places to dine and dance and the highest-priced dishes on the menu, she has no serious intentions concerning you.

But when a girl begins to talk economy to a boy; when she suggests going to the movies instead of somewhere to dine and dance; when she orders a hamburger instead of guinea breasts and mushrooms under glass, it is an unmistakable sign that she is regarding your bankroll as her own and is commencing to save up for furniture for her future home.

(3) And this is an acid test, talk to a girl about yourself and observe her reactions to it. Monologue along to her by the hour about the grocery trade. Tell her what you said to the boss and the boss said to you. If she yawns in your face or if she gets up and walks around the room, or turns on the radio, you may as well abandon hope.

(4) Take note of a girl's attitude toward you. As long as she regards you as an intelligent, husky, able-bodied man, capable of taking care of yourself and with enough sense to come in out of the rain, her regard for you is merely platonic.

Of course, there are other signs of love, such as a girl developing an acute attack of domesticity, and especially when she begins dragging a man to church with her, that are not to be ignored. But the never-fail indications of love in a girl are her mothering a boy and thinking it is more fun to stay at home with him than it is to go to a party. They are the real danger signals. Watch out for them.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

The tendency to play is a [illegible] and fundamental urge. Give the baby nothing and he will play with his fingers or toes, or with the moats of dust in a sunbeam, or with the end of a sheet. Give him a rattle or a string of beads and he will shake it, bite it, bang the air with it for hours on end.

Yet only so long ago as the days of the Puritans, they lacked the imagination to see that children must play. Play was considered a crime and children were expected to work, within the limits of their abilities, just as were the adults. Life was a serious business and play an insult to this seriousness.

How differently we feel about play today. We consider it to be the chief business of the child. Because houses have dwindled in urban areas, and apartments multiplied, we provide play space in the parks or vacant lots, or behind apartments, so that the play interests of children may be satisfied.

Toy departments furnish every possible satisfaction for the playful child, from rattles to miniature games of golf and tennis. Not only is the modern mother determined to see that her child shall have every kind of toy, as he grows, so that no play he might desire would be lost to him; but she recognizes play as a necessary means of developing sociability.

The child may be playing tag with a companion. But in his play he is learning to struggle in competition, to give the other fellow his turn, to accept defeat and applaud the winner. Just play, you say, yet those are practices which will help him in every relationship of his adult life.

It isn't enough for a parent to provide a closet full of toys and ignore the part which a companion of the child's own age can play in teaching him these essential lessons in how to get along with others.

We feel now that far from being a "sin" for a child to spend his day in play, it is more of a sin to deny him that opportunity. It is only in childhood that he can learn all the skills and arts, all the practices of society, and his defeats will not be measured in terms of money. That game comes later.

My leaflet, "Toys For All Ages" may be obtained free on request. Inquiries should be addressed to Myrtle Meyer Eldred of the Your Baby And Mine department of this newspaper, and a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope should be enclosed for return mailing.

Fill Your Coal Bin Now!

Every ton of coal you can store away today makes it possible to ship an additional ton of munitions this winter.

Canada's transportation industry is facing up to its biggest job. Railroad traffic is increasing rapidly. If you purchase and take early delivery of as much as possible, your fuel requirements for the coming winter, you can help materially to avoid a transportation bottleneck. After October the greatly increased output of munitions in Canada and the United States must take precedence over all other transportation demands. If you don't buy your coal when transportation is available, you may have to wait for it this winter. I urge you, therefore, in your own and your country's interest, fill your coal bin now.

EYE STRAIN Steals Sight

That "just a headache" may be your warning of more serious ills to follow. Take heed of tired, aching uneasy eyes and remember the eyestrain of today is the faulty vision to follow.

Blindness seldom comes over-night. Loss of sight is gradual, often unnoticed, and ignored, until you just cannot read the way you like, the print blurs, objects are foggy.

Every waking minute, subtle eyestrain may be taxing your sight, your nerves and your health. Even normal eyes change through age, or much eye work and need regular examination by an Optometrist.

Have your eyes examined now. It is the safe thing to do for your precious irreplaceable eyes. If glasses should be found necessary, the resulting clear, restful natural sight will convince you beyond any doubt that your eyes need help.

Visit one of the Optometrists listed in this announcement.

The President spoke during a program in which Wendell L. Willkie and Tom K. Smith, St. Louis banker and head of the mobilization, also participated.

Windsors Drive To High River To See Picture

PEKISKO, Alta., Oct. 4—(CP)—A rain and snowstorm that blew out of the western hills Thursday and continued Friday morning turned to bright sunshine late yesterday and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor once again left the confines of the Duke's 4,000-acre EP ranch for a drive to nearby High River.

28 EDMONTON WELFARE AGENCIES URGENTLY NEED YOUR SUPPORT

One of the mysteries of that great plan called LIFE, is why some people's existences are shadowed by so much sadness. A young man stricken by illness must stop work; his wife and children are helpless, public charges, though a short time ago they lived happily in a home of their own. A small boy, carefree though poor, is hit by an automobile, and only the best and constant hospital attention will fit him for normal life again. A man and woman who have lived side by side for half a century, find themselves without kin, unable to exert themselves to earn even a pittance! ALL GOOD, FINE PEOPLE—"the salt of the earth"—like yourself and your neighbors. The fault is not theirs that they are in need. Let us give to them through the Community Chest with open mind, heart and purse! We want to make this, Edmonton's first COMMUNITY CHEST drive, an outstanding success. Our best reward will be the knowledge that we have helped those who have suffered, to regain their faith in mankind, and to feel once again, that "LIFE IS WORTHWHILE!"

Robbery With Violence Case, Police Charge

Louis Stanecki of this city was held by city police Saturday on a charge of robbery with violence, after his arrest at about 10:30 a.m. by Det. Sgt. Bert Petheram and Det. Murdo Munro.

Stanecki is alleged to have robbed William Dilworth, chauffeur, of a wrist watch, valued at $37.50 and $5.40 in cash.

Dilworth is said to have told police that he was attacked by two men on 97 street, near the Haddon Hall, shortly after midnight Wednesday.

He claimed to have been struck violently on the head and knocked to the pavement by the taller of two men who loomed out of the darkness.

The watch was obtained from a vest pocket and so was the money, Dilworth stated.

Dilworth was stunned for a moment or two and his assailants fled when another man started to intervene.

Stanecki is scheduled to appear in police court Monday.

The Visual Load

By JACKSON BROS., Optometrist

Approximately eighty-five per cent of all we "learn" comes to us through the medium of vision, and in this modern day, we are dependent upon the reading of books for the greater part of our specific information. The importance of possessing efficiently functioning eyes is increasing amazingly.

In business offices the introduction of typewriters, dictaphones, posting machines, have added much to speed and facility in handling correspondence. This gain has increased the burden on the eyes of today. In many instances an office correspondent must read a great deal more than was required in the same position in former years.

Needless to say, such rigid requirements are eliminating the visually inefficient. They no longer have a fighting chance for positions they might want. This disadvantage increases every day.

There is no reason for anyone to be in this class, if they will only take care of their eyes, and at the least sign of strain, have them examined and the error corrected.

Visit our Optical Parlor and have our Registered Optometrist give your eyes a thorough eyesight examination. He has had many years of practical experience and has his degree secured by university examination.

If you require glasses, you may use our well established easy pay plan, in weekly or monthly payments.

THE QUESTION

What type of car driver is most annoying to you?

THE ANSWERS

KNUTE PATZE, welder: The one who fails to stop to allow a string of pedestrians to continue crossing along their legitimate lane.

* * *

H. B. SHEA, fire captain: There still is the odd driver who insists on getting to his destination while the fire cars shriek. Such practice is not only annoying to the fire boys, but the driver is "playing with fire" himself.

* * *

STEVE PALYLYK, meat packer: The one who whizzes by me for no evident reason in the first place, and then turns a corner or pulls into the curb a few yards farther on is most annoying to me. Such impatience, I would say.

* * *

DAVE SCHOCK, city visitor: Get this picture, then see if you don't agree with me. Several cars in a row waiting for the green light to appear. Yellow light is on—his hand reaches for the horn and his foot for the pedal. Green light appears—in a split second the horn toots, the motor roars. That's the type that gets my goat.

Teachers Urge Cost Of Living Bonus Be Paid

Members of the Edmonton Public School Teachers' Association at a meeting Thursday unanimously expressed the opinion that teachers are entitled to the cost of living bonus provided under the Dominion government's order-in-council, and negotiations will be opened with the Edmonton Public School Board seeking this bonus.

Question of the whole salary position of teachers in the association came before the meeting and it was the opinion that the only schedule on which teachers could legally be placed was on the 1929 schedule. Teachers, Miss A. M. Johnston, president of the association, stated, had never negotiated any other schedule since that time. She added that such negotiation was required in law before any schedule became operative.

She declared that teachers were not back on the 1929 salary schedules, and that any statement that teachers are now reinstated at 1929 salary levels was erroneous and created a false impression in the minds of the public.

The meeting unanimously endorsed the Community Chest effort, and it was recommended that a percentage deduction be made from salaries to create a fund from which the teachers' contributions would be made, not only to the Community Chest, but to the Red Cross, War Services and other deserving charities.

These deductions would be authorized by each individual teacher and would be paid by the secretary of the school board into the fund.

Getting Around

with JOHN OLIVER

"THEM thar'" Kiwanians are at it again—and with their customary zip, zeal and enthusiasm. I dropped into Heintzman and Company's store Friday afternoon and was having a chat with the genial manager, W. G. Strachan, when Baxter Ridley and Jim Bowen, two ace members of the staff, hove in sight and commenced moving pianos and generally shifting large quantities of stock. After venturing the suggestion that there must be a large amount of "new stuff" coming in, I was informed that decks were being cleared for the evening, so that the Kiwanis Glee Club could go into action.

A special piano was left for rehearsal purposes and the front part of the store was barricaded and later on the enthusiastic vocalists "went to it" in fine style, concentrating on one of Mr. Strachan's special arrangements, a vocal medley entitled "London" and featuring many well known tunes. You'll probably hear the boys do it at some function or other in the near future. Incidentally the club is booked to sing for Wing Commander J. Cyril Malone and his cohorts at the Manning Pool on Monday and in the immediate future will sing for the troops at the Camrose basic training centre. The service men are fortunate in having such a devoted service club as the Kiwanis to entertain them.

I was sitting near a window just before daylight folded its tent like the Arabs and silently stole away, when around the side of the house ran a partridge. Rapidly it spurted around the lawn in front of the house and then hopped up the steps and from the uppermost, sat and surveyed the situation. I couldn't resist the temptation to get closer and admire the beautiful colorings of the feathers, but when I opened the door, "Bob White" took-off in a hurry and zoomed across the street in a generally upward direction.

* * *

Walking west on Jasper, a man-sized "Greetings John" caught up with me, to be immediately followed by the vocalist. It was Lieut. Bruce Macdonald. Bruce, a former U. of A. track, field and rugby star, won premier honors at an army track meet in the east during last summer. Enlisting in the infantry, he felt he had run into a "bottleneck" and wasn't getting to the front soon enough. So he joined an armored unit. With such a leave as he is now enjoying it would seem that "an eastern Canadian port" will be his early destination. Full of enthusiasm he hopes soon to "have a crack at the Hun." His brother Lieut. Allan Macdonald went overseas with the Edmonton Regiment. Good luck, Bruce.

To "Buy Something British" is part of your contribution to help reinforce Britain's life line to help keep British Industry constructively at work producing the things for which it has so long been famous! Yes, our hats are off to the British for their superb courage for their grim determination!

Their boats are bombarded... island blockaded... their cities and towns bombed... their factories and homes showered with incendiaries and still they carry on! In all this turmoil they continue to manufacture, to export and refuse to lower their quality and the "British Navy Continues to Deliver the Goods."

By purchasing "Something British," you not only will be helping the gallant people who are holding the fort against the assault upon human freedom, but will be providing the defenders with money they need to pay for their enormous purchases of Canadian products. And finally, let us bear in mind His Majesty's words: "This time we are all in the front-line!" So it is not enough to merely "Buy Something British"... Buy War Saving Certificates Regularly!

EVER hear of a [illegible] whose sole purpose is to [illegible]

Down at Ponoka they have worked out something very close to a sport bank, but the citizens whose efforts have made it possible probably haven't stopped to think of it yet in that way

Here is the story of this highly successful undertaking.

Years ago the folks in Ponoka decided that the annual agricultural fair wasn't worth the effort any more. The farmer that will spend a holiday looking fat pigs or contented cows in the face—even if they do come complete with ponderous pedigrees—is a mighty rare one. Like everyone else, the men and women from the farms want to see something new and exciting when they take a day off

So gradually fair day at Ponoka evolved into a sport day, staged each year by the Ponoka Sports Association. A few years ago, this association tried out a small rodeo program and found it such a good drawing card that they built it up into the present big stampede.

Good showmanship and good business management made this annual rodeo a profitable one and the Sport Association soon found itself with a respectable bank roll. Now if you know a hockey stick from a baseball bat, you'll know that under such circumstances there will be demands from every branch of sport for a bit of financial help

Not To Be Frittered Away

HOWEVER, the roll didn't accumulate by itself. Mighty hard work by a lot of able men was what rounded up those thousands of dollars. So these men sat down, lit their pipes, and considered what to do.

They decided first of all that the money wouldn't be tossed away, but that it would be used to help sport in the town. They said: "We'll loan money to any responsible sport organization that has a fair chance of repaying us, but we'll not hand over any large amount to any other outfit."

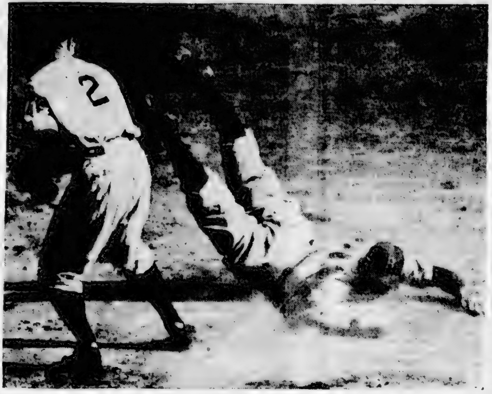
FIRST SERIES POSTPONEMENT IN FIVE YEARS

Rain Brings Brooklyn Another Break

SPORTS BULLETIN

There's Mud In Your Eye, Mickey!



Hitting the dirt face-first, Mickey Owen skids past Yankee baseman Rolfe to land safely at third in the first game of the Yankees-Dodgers series. Mickey got so much dirt in his eyes, the umpire called time out while the Dodger catcher was cleaned up. Owen thrilled the crowd with his triple, on which Peewee Reese scampered home to score the first run tallied by the Beautiful Bums. Lady Luck crossed them up, however, giving the Yankees the game by a 3-2 score.

Unless Gordon Breaks His Leg, He's Series Hero

Day's Rest Puts Wyatt In Again

BROOKLYN, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Rain and fog wrapped a wet blanket around the world series Friday, forcing a postponement of the third tussle between Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees and even threatening tomorrow's prospects.

When Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis announced, "Gentlemen, I have made my decision and the game's off," he gave baseball's annual classic its first setback in five years.

The interruption in the program did not affect the immediate pitching plans of the two managers. Kirby Higbe, a 22-game winner with a buggywhip arm, is generally expected to take the mound for the Dodgers with Lefty Marius Russo the probable starters for the Yankees.

EXTRA DAY OF REST

The delay is expected to favor the Dodgers because it made possible an additional day's rest for Whitlow Wyatt, their ace who won Thursday's second game and evened the series, and it might even make it possible for him to work three times if the series should go the limit.

The same reasoning might be used for Red Ruffing, the dean of the Yankee pitching staff and winner of the opening encounter last Wednesday. But since the Yankees have a wider range of starters than the Dodgers, and since Ruffing can't be used more than once again at the best, all the advantage of the rain appeared to be in favor of the Dodgers.

While the Dodgers were sprawled around in their clubhouse after the game was called, [illegible] suggested to Wyatt that if the rain should continue he might even have a chance to win [illegible] contests of the series.

"Yeh, that's right. I might," he [illegible] in his Georgia drawl.

GATE LINEUP SOAKED

The rain started Friday as a [illegible] shower about 7 a.m. and [illegible] drizzle that [illegible] thoroughly drenched the playing field and a few hundred fans who had huddled around the bleacher gates [illegible] since midnight.

The gates never were opened [illegible] Commissioner Landis [illegible] the game, the fans scattered to their homes for dry [illegible] before starting another vigil last night.

The last previous postponement was Oct. 1, 1936, when the second game of the series between the Yankees and New York Giants was rained out and there had been another five-year interval without postponement before that.

The record postponement in the [illegible] of the series occurred in 1911, when the Giants and Philadelphia Athletics were kept idle for six successive days by rain after their third game.

Groundskeeper Matty Schwab told Landis the field would require only a few hours for draining, once the rain stopped.

The day's delay was a godsend to the Brooklyn front office, which still had 1,400 reserved seats on its unwilling hands when the game was called. It seems that President Larry Macphail had done such a splendid job of keeping the tickets out of the clutches of speculators and cold corporations that [illegible] Dodger fans couldn't get [illegible] either. Luckily the Dodgers [illegible] had a glut of seats late Thursday night, and rain gave them time to move the lot.

PLAYERS COOL OFF

There was speculation that the day's rest might have given the players a chance to cool off. They were hot by the time the second game ended in Yankee stadium, on the verge of throwing fists and there almost certainly would have been an explosion if they had played yesterday.

There haven't been many rougher series. Both sides have been blocking almost viciously on the paths, and little Phil Rizzuto, of the Yanks, has taken an especially bad beating. He was ready to start swinging after Mickey Owen of the Dodgers, knocked him about five feet in the air in an effort to break up a double play in the second game

Dodger Fans Not The Variety Easy To Discourage

BROOKLYN, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Neither rain, nor cold, nor heat nor gloom of night can stay these Dodger fans from bleacher seats to cheer their heroes home.

That's the way it was yesterday when intermittent showers and thick mist forced postponement of the third game of the world series at Ebbets Field.

That's the way it was at nightfall although a humid fog enveloped the city.

Several thousand persons left the reserved seats entrances when the Dodgers management raised the "no game today" sign, but rabid bleacherites held fast at their gate. At least 50 swore to maintain their vigil throughout the night.

Chester Willis, 19, of Flatbush, spoke for his fellow standees.

"What's 22 hours when I can see the Dodgers play?" he asked as he took up his post at 2:55 p.m., fortified with 12 sandwiches and three packages of cigarettes.

"The Dodgers are going to win the series. There is no doubt about it."

Joe Green, 65, of Washington, D.C., who was first on the bleacher line because he arrived at the gate Wednesday night, retired to a nearby garage to take a nap. He said his fellow enthusiasts agreed that he could head the line on his return.

"I'll get a ticket," he said determinedly. "Nobody's going to keep me out."

Rival University Grid Squads Clash This Afternoon

Saskatchewan University's Huskies arrived in the city this morning for the opening clash of their four game series with Alberta's Golden Bears. Starting time of this afternoon's encounter at Varsity Grid is 3 o'clock.

Although the strength of the visiting grid squad is more or less an unknown quantity, it may be taken for granted that Kolb McEown and Kent Phillips will produce another well drilled aggregation, as in previous years, with a goodly repertoire of trick formations and unusual plays.

Coach Bob Fritz has been rather handicapped in whipping the Bears into shape, as the University has only been open a few days and practice opportunities at a premium.

However there is plenty of good material at Varsity this season and the advance dope is that the Golden Bears should be able to claw their way through the Huskies this afternoon.

With The Pin Busters

H. Pollard, of Dodgers, wasn't leaving many of the old maples standing in his three strings in Mercantile 10-pins at Recreation alleys Friday night. He ran off 214, 249, 233 for 696 to take both single and triple highs.

Dodgers and Union Packers each took three straight and the former's 2,941 and Bruins' 2,791 the top scores.

Cpl. Cahoon, of Instructors, led Initial Training School No. 4 for best one-game with 293, while Cpl. Bourassa, of the same team, took the triple with 599 from 222, 175, 202. Equipments with 2,566, had best aggregate, with Instructors next with 2,388 and Accounts had 2,287.

C. MacPherson, of Wasps, topped the singles list with C. A. T. Ltd. knocking over 212 in his second game. The same player also had best three-game count with 568 making 183 in his first and 173 in the last game.

Whirlwinds were the only three-straight winners and were third high for aggregate with 2,288. Cheetahs had 2,450 and Wasps 2,291.

In C.N. Mixed Fives Mac MacLeod of Wahoos, piled up 665 from 221, 273, 166 and picked off both single and triple. Polka Dots and Whizz Bangs won three in a row and the former had 2,955 for team score. Whizz Bangs had a net 2,725.

How Come This And Why That?

Rainy Day Gives Critics Chance To Swing Hammer

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The rains came, giving the Yankees and Dodgers a rest Friday and giving the fans from Brooklyn to Bombay a chance to catch up on their second guessing. If Joe McCarthy and Leo Durocher knew they had several million assistant managers, all "No" men, particularly when a play goes wrong, they probably would think twice before making some of their moves.

Only two games have been played, but the assistant managers have been having a picnic. These "I'd a done it this way" guys had a chance to get a head start on their grandstand quarterbacking this year. Before a ball was thrown they were asking why Durocher, with an outstanding ace like Whit Wyatt, shelved him in favor of Curt Davis for that all-important first game?

THE EARLIER, THE MORE

They figured that Durocher would want to use Wyatt as often as possible, and that the earlier he started the oftener he might have a chance to work.

The Peewee Reese "I was fouled" episode, which tied in nicely with Jim Wasdell's missing-bunt controversy, was the choice tid-bit of the opening day.

In the seventh inning, with the tying run on second and the winning run on first, and none down, Wasdell was sent up to bat for Casey. The natural play under the circumstances would be a bunt, but Wasdell didn't bunt. Whether he missed the signal or was acting under orders is difficult to say.

But he didn't bunt, and his pop foul in front of the Yankee dugout was gobbled by Red Rolfe. Reese, on second, tagged up and sprinted for third, and was out, the double play killing the rally.

THEY WANT TO KNOW

The second guessers want to know if Durocher had ordered a bunt, why wasn't Casey allowed to bunt for himself? They also want to know why Reese took such a long chance.

The first question doesn't seem to have any answer. As to the second, we'd give Reese credit for playing heads-up baseball. If he had been successful he would have been a hero.

Most of the second guessers so far have been working on Durocher. Don't those Yanks ever do anything wrong? Even when they lost there was no criticism of McCarthy's strategy. But just give 'em time!

FOG OVER FLATBUSH

A few fans managed to get into Ebbets Field yesterday even though the gates weren't opened . . . One woman berated some reporters for arriving late. "You call yourselves fans and you don't get here until 11 o'clock," she shouted . . . A kid rushed out and took a seat in the Dodgers' dugout. When a groundskeeper tried to chase him, he retorted: "I'll be sitting here yet."

LEAFS

Davison, star kicker for the Spitfires is out for the season on account of a knee injury sustained in the second last game.

Coach Tommy Hays after last night's workout appeared to be quite optimistic over the chances for the Leafs coming through. The boys were put through some new plays Friday and expect to put them on view Monday night.

Dud. Menzies, South Side mentor, stated last night his squad is in good shape and all set for the series. He will again have Bob Malloy doing the booting in Davison's place.

Malloy made a swell job of the kicking department last Tuesday and he really did hoist the ball, one of his point-scoring kicks being a towering 55-yarder.

The city playoff series promises to be a closely fought affair. The three league tilts between the two clubs were all nip and tuck exhibitions, the Leafs scoring a total of 32 points as against their opponents' 17, but each game was won in the last few minutes.

Spitfires during the league season had only 33 points counted against them, one point better than the Maple Leafs. The latter, however ran up a total of 62, while the South Siders made 50.

Curtin Plans No Upheaval In Government

CANBERRA, Oct. 4.—(AAP)—Prime Minister designate John Curtin, who assumes office Tuesday, today stressed the importance of smooth transition to the new Labor regime.

"I am not tearing up the roots of Australia in a day," he said. "For instance, any appointments which are not a cardinal affront to the Labor policy will stand. There will be no dislocation of government machinery."

In accordance with this policy, Sir Earle Page, commerce minister of the defeated Fadden government, who is at Singapore bound for Washington and London, has been instructed to proceed. He will discuss lease lend aid at Washington and his mission is considered so important no time should be lost in carrying it out. All ambassadorial appointments will be retained.

Wealthy Arthur Coles, who was mainly responsible for unseating the Fadden government, will not be invited to join the Curtin government but said today that he would support the Labor Party. Thus, counting the Speaker of the Fadden government, Nairn, the new Labor government is assured a working majority of three.

Dollar Wheat Is Sought By Pools

WINNIPEG, Oct. 4—(CP)—Officials of the Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta Wheat Pools, meeting here Friday to consider the economic situation of Western Canada wheat producers, endorsed a four point program which they considered "absolutely necessary to preserve the solvency of Western Canada."

A statement issued yesterday outlined the four-point program which already has been submitted to the wheat committee of the federal government. The four points are:

1—That the initial payment by the Canadian Wheat Board be increased to $1 a bushel, basis No. 1 Northern, Fort William. (The initial payment being paid to farmers on the 1941 crop is 70 cents a bushel.)

2—That stocks of wheat represented by the carryover as at July 31, 1941, be taken off the market and held as a national emergency war reserve. (The carryover of wheat at the end of July from the 1940-41 crop year was 480,000,000 bushels—an all-time record.)

3—That, as from Aug. 1, 1941, all sales of wheat be credited to the crop season 1941-42.

4—That the crop year 1941-42 be declared an emergency year under terms of the Prairie Farms Assistance act, irrespective of market prices prevailing.

Norwegians Clash With Nazi Troops

LONDON, Oct. 4.—(CP) — Norwegian guerillas have had several brisk clashes with German occupation forces near Trondheim, the Norwegian telegraph agency reported today.

The agency also said a violent combat between Germans and Norwegians broke out in a cafe at Steinkjaer near Trondheim and spread over the entire town.

When German soldiers entered the cafe and turned on the radio to listen to a Nazi broadcast, it was said, the Norwegians promptly walked out.

The angered Germans ran after the Norwegians and "hit out at them with revolver butts, ammunition belts and anything they could lay their hands on."

"The battle rapidly spread over the whole town," the agency said.

OTTAWA, Oct. 4.—(CP) — The National Labor Supply Council was understood Friday night to have reviewed at a meeting yesterday a recommendation transmitted to it by Labor Minister McLarty that all disputes be settled by arbitration during the war.

Council officials said any decision reached would be transmitted to the labor minister.

In announcing on Monday that a recommendation had been sent to the council, Mr. McLarty gave assurance of "ready and complete participation" of the government in furtherance of an all-out effort on the industrial and labor front.

Mr. McLarty said a statement had been submitted by A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, recommending that the Labor Supply Council deal at once with the question of collective bargaining and foregoing the right to strike, with settlement of all disputes by arbitration while the war lasted.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4—(AP)—Reporting they were "actually hungry" after a month's stay in Britain, two high-ranking agriculture department officials said today the British people need all the food the United States can possibly send.

YOURS FOR A WHILE

—BY LOUISE HOLMES—

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

"HOPED you might come out," Merritt said. He was a tall, slight young man, very blond, scrubbed-looking. "Been watching your light. Sit down. It's a gorgeous night."

Christie backed away, conscious of her informal attire. "I didn't know you were here—I didn't know anyone was about—it looked so beautiful."

Merritt laughed. "Just consider me part of the scenery. I've been crazy to talk to you."

"What a[illegible]" She [illegible] get back to her room. Suppose someone should see her in the patio with Merritt, dressed in pajamas and robe.

"Oh, [illegible]" said lightly.

"[illegible]" She was edging toward the door.

"You're not going [illegible]"

"Yes. Goodnight, Merritt."

"Goodnight, Christie. See you in the morning."

She stepped silently inside and closed the door. Turning [illegible] the dark sitting room, she [illegible] short.

"Well, Christie." Gray's voice restrained and angry.

"What are you doing here?" she demanded.

RENDEZVOUS

"Perf[illegible] duty," he said, standing directly in front of her. "S[illegible] having a little [illegible] Merritt." Sarcasm [illegible]

"And why sh[illegible]" she asked [illegible]

"I can think of [illegible] why you should [illegible]"

"Name three," she [illegible]

"I will. You are [illegible]"

"Oh," she [illegible] the first time I've heard of it since entering this house."

"Well, you're hearing it now."

"The fact would be much more impressive if you [illegible] the rest of the household."

Gray threw out his hands. "If you have any sense you can see why I haven't told Mother. Do you think I want to kill her?"

"Kill her, my eye," Christie sniffed. "If she hadn't pulled the wool over your eyes until you are blind you could see that she puts on an act every time she faints."

"You shut up," Gr[illegible] harshly.

"I'll shut up when I get good and ready." She was close to tears, [illegible] ever [illegible] hat," she spluttered. "I despise you—I d-despise—" Her voice broke on a choked sob.

All the repression of weeks left Gray [illegible] wretchedness of his days at home made him say, "Wh[illegible] and why are you staying?"

Christie took one [illegible] step and then another. Her body was [illegible], her head bowed, as if Gray had struck her, as if she expected him to strike her.

As she reached the door of her bedroom he said, "Christie—I'm sorry—"

She disappeared through the door and locked it.

The next morning, wrapped in the pink robe, Christie knocked on Grandmother's door, entering at the brisk, "Come in." Grandmother lay in her wide, old-fashioned bed. Christie sat down close beside her.

"Grandmother," she began, voice hoarse with weeping. "I've got to go. Please let me go—Please." Her chin quivered as she added childishly, "I want Father and Mom."

Grandmother took her hand. "I heard you and Gray quarreling last night," she said.

"Please let me go, Grandmother."

CHRISTIE WANTS TO LEAVE

"No." The old lady shook her head. "I know best. You and [illegible] come to an understanding if I let you go."

"We['ll] never will anyway."

One of the grooms gave Christie a riding lesson that morning. Debby went along to help with the instructions. Merritt went along just in case.

Debby dragged Merritt away on some errand of her own and Christie was left alone with Grandmother. The air was warm and [illegible] honeysuckle hedge. Leafy palms like tall sentinels stood guard at the edge of the sloping lawn.

Christie asked, "[illegible] a girl named Sa[illegible]"

"I don't k[illegible] Gray spoke about her before [illegible] were married."

"That's Sally Bryant. She [illegible] Gray played tog[illegible] We all thought they [illegible] they grew up."

"Crazy kid," Christie laughed. "Wish we could hear what she is saying."

"Something ornery, you can be sure of that," Merritt remarked.

"Oh, Debby's not so bad. She has a [illegible] mother."

WONDER WHY WE CALL IT THE HUSH, OR THE STILL, OR THE QUIET OF THE NIGHT?
UBLE GLUFUF ZZZ
IT CAN'T BE ON ACCOUNT OF THAT GREAT ARMY OF PEOPLE WHO SNORE AND TALK IN THEIR SLEEP.

OR THOSE OVER AMBITIOUS GARBAGE MEN WHO BANG CANS AROUND IN THE DOWNTOWN DISTRICTS OF OUR LARGE CITIES.
CLATTER CRASH BONG
OR THE CAT ON THE BACK FENCE.
OR THE COYOTE OUT ON THE PLAINS HOWLING FOR THE MOON.

OR THE FELLOW WHO TURNS THE RADIO ON FULL TILT SO HE CAN HEAR IT OUT ON THE PORCH.
